

Mary Carr Coming In With Fox 'Silver Wings'

"Silver Wings" featuring Mary Carr, will be shown Wednesday at the Okeechobee Theatre. According to advices from the William Fox office in New York City, this feature production shows Mary Carr in a far better characterization than in the famous "Over the Hill".

Mary Carr's role is that of a mother who devoted her life to raising her children upon the death of her husband, the late of a profitable business that he had built as well as the care of two boys and a daughter. One son is a quiet, unassuming chap and the other a law lad who permits himself to be victim of social parasites and leads a dissipated life.

The daughter marries for love against the wishes of her proud father. The young son who has followed diligently in his father's footsteps is forced to run away because of his brother's crime which has been fastened upon him. The mother—Mary Carr—watches two of her children depart and then discovers that this promising son on whom she has showered so much affection, is himself accused of forgery. He, too, absconds. But his waywardness forces his mother into bankruptcy. After the mother has drunk deep the drugs of poverty, the family is brought together by curious twists of fate and once again happiness enters into the portals of their lives.

MARRIED TO WOMAN HE NEVER KNEW OR SAW

Baltimore, March 29.—Sufferings from loss of memory caused by injuries suffered in an airplane accident at Pensacola, Fla., flying field, in the spring of 1919, Edward Yaks former army aviator awakes from his state of oblivion a year ago to find himself the husband of a woman he "never knew or saw."

That is what he told A. Demasey Sappington an equity examiner, taking testimony in the former flyer's plea for annulment of his marriage to Rose Harris here a year after his accident. Upon his recovery last year, he said, he was introduced to a stunning girl. Your wife—that is what I was told. I had never known the woman; and I did not want to be married—indeed, I never had any such intention.

CAPT. DUNBAR DAVIS DIES AT SOUTHPORT

Wilmington, March 30.—Captain Dunbar Davis, veteran captain in the light house service, and a hero of Fort Fisher, died at Southport, early today. He was 79 years old.

Captain Davis was one of the best known figures in this section, having during the Civil War, while a soldier in the service of the Confederacy displayed in a number of occasions bravery that few men can equal particularly during the bombardment of Fort Fisher, say Confederate comrades here today.

He was mentioned a number of times by his superior officers for bravery in action and was one of the most popular men of his battalion, practically every man in the outfit. It is said, realizing that he was one of the bravest of the brave, who defended Fort Fisher against northern attacks for so many long months.

MORAVIAN EASTER SERVICE ATTENDED BY THOUSANDS

Winston Salem, April 1.—Sixteen thousand persons took part in the Easter program at the Home Moravian church here at daybreak this morning, engaging in a ceremony held by Moravians through more than a century and a half. Hundreds of this state and from many other states, people came here from all parts of the state to participate in the celebration, hotels and boarding houses and many homes being filled with visitors, beginning at 2 o'clock this morning six Moravian bands played in various parts of the city, assembling at 5:00 for reading of the Moravian History by Bishop Edward Bonthaler in front of the Home church and for the closing exercises in the Moravian graveyard where the thousands of graves were covered with Easter flowers.

Bull Weevil Forces County To Diversify

Columbus, Driven From Cotton Turns To Dairy Cattle And Hogs

Whiteville, April 1.—The soil in the western part of Columbus county is very fertile and prior to the advent of the cotton boll weevil it was nothing unusual for the cotton growers in western Columbus to produce from one to two bales of cotton to the acre of land.

The boll weevil appeared in this section during 1920. However, no great deal of damage was done to that season's cotton crop.

The acreage planted in 1921 was pretty large and approximately half of that crop was destroyed by these powerfully destructive pests.

The 1922 acreage was reduced to about six per cent of that of 1921 and about eighty per cent of that crop was destroyed by the boll weevils. Consequently Columbus planters were almost convinced that it is next to an impossibility to produce cotton in the face of the weevil. To find something to sidetrack on from cotton growing was soon undertaken by a good many of the planters.

Dairying and hog raising in western Columbus is now the order and both of these industries are progressing very rapidly. During the summer and fall of 1922 some seven or eight cars of porkers were shipped from this county to distant packing houses.

Vann Mezer, of War's Station, is engaged in dairying on a good sized scale for a community of its size. From eight head of milkers he supplies two small towns—Cerro Gordo and Fair Bluff—daily with milk and cream and butter. A number of other former cotton growers in the region around about Chadbourn are engaged in dairying and from all reports this industry is proving far more profitable than cotton growing under boll weevil conditions.

Late reports from those who have raised and marketed hogs indicate that they are highly satisfied with the results obtained. It is estimated that during the present year some forty or more cars of porkers will be raised and shipped from this county. Some swine raisers declare that it is not very hard to produce a 300-pound pig at the age of six or seven months, while a nine months old pig generally tips the scales to 300 pounds.

To view the matter on one side, the boll weevil has wrecked Columbus, on the other side, this pest has proved a blessing to us.

SHE SOUGHT AN EGG BUT FOUND WHISKEY

Danville, Va., March 31.—School children who were taken yesterday evening on the premises of the Danville Country club for an Easter egg hunt found more than they bargained for when one excited young girl found six gallons of liquor neatly cached under a pile of brush. A score or more children had scattered over the property where eggs had been secreted and all of them were seeking them when the little girl, uncovered six gallon jugs. The Schoolfield authorities were notified and they poured the liquor out.

Dunn Route One

The past week has been a busy one here. A good many have planted home corn, and have heard of some planting cotton. But, this cold spell will cause a halt in planting. Some think that fruit through this community has been killed by cold, however we think that the blooms were not out sufficient to be killed.

Rev. E. C. Shea, of Bule's Creek, preached at Spring Branch Saturday and Sunday, using as his subjects, The City of Refuge and The Finishing Touch respectively.

Among those returning home from school for the Easter holidays are: Messrs. A. C. Jackson and J. H. Naylor, of Bule's Creek; H. P. Naylor, of Wake Forest; Miss Lucy Naylor, State School at Salsburg; Misses Ann Mae Baggett, Lola and Genevieve Jackson, Pineland; Miss Pearl Jackson, Carolina (Maxton); Misses Gladys and Jewell Strickland, Meredith.

Mr. David Willford, attorney, of Greenville, N. C., visited his parents here Sunday.

Mrs. M. H. McLeod, of Raleigh, visited relatives here the past week.

Mrs. Dewey Stearns, of Norfolk, Va., arrived Sunday to spend some time with her father, Rev. W. R. Glover.

Rev. M. W. Naylor has been indisposed for the last few days but thinks he is some better at present. At a church conference of Spring Branch last Saturday, Mr. D. R. Warren, was elected superintendent of the Sunday school at that place. Here's saying they have a good man stand by him.
