

MUST BE PAINFUL AND DISCOURAGING

For the past eleven years a vast number of extremely intelligent, lucid and plausible speakers have been carefully explaining to the American people that Woodrow Wilson, as President, did those things that he ought not to have done and left undone those things that he ought to have done. During the last four years these explanations have been redoubled in number and vociferousness. It must therefore be painful indeed for these careful explainers to note that every time Woodrow Wilson's name is mentioned at a public gathering the fool people rise up and try to yell their heads off.

For instance, when Lord Robert Cecil, a distinguished foreigner whom everybody was anxious to hear, was speaking at the Hotel Astor in New York the other night, somebody made the mistake of remarking that Woodrow Wilson was listening in on his radio set in Washington. Instantly the assembled guests forgot all about Lord Robert, and shouted for Wilson. It was a repetition of the scene of inauguration day, when the outgoing President received a greater ovation than the incoming one; and of the day when they buried the Unknown Soldier and the appearance of Wilson resulted in the faux pas of the populace cheering a funeral procession.

It certainly must be a painful and discouraging experience for the people who have spent most of their time demonstrating Wilson's mistakes to learn that the people apparently love better a man who does the wrong thing than an altogether admirable gentleman who is afraid to do anything at all.—Greensboro Daily News.

to report upon the operation and face the dignified countenance of the Recorder when he asks "how come." Ten dollars is more than ordinary witnesses receive for serving in the court room. It remains to be seen whether it will be an inducement to the members of the society for the Evasion of Volstead, or whether it will mean the capture of more stills with representatives accompanying them to the misdemeanor warehouse.—Harnett County News.

TO WHICH SHALL THE MEDAL GO?

The death rate among babies in Johnston County was higher than it ought to be," and last November the commissioners employed a county nurse and put her to work. There was an appropriation of $1,250 for the cause and the nurse, Miss Sarah Mulberry, who proved "very capable and efficient," was provided with an automobile. A new board of commissioners came in, and when Miss Mulberry was at the old home in Kentucky, where she had been called by the death of her brother, she received official word from Johnston County that her department had been abolished and there was no need for her to return. The Smithfield Herald says there was "no cause for complaint," but the commissioners cut out her work on the ground of economy. Which is to say, they put a few dollars above the lives of the babies of their county.

Durham County is too stingy to put up a decent monument to the Confederacy and Johnston is too stingy to save the lives of the babies. Which of the two deserves the medal might be a good subject for the school debating societies over the State.—Charlotte Observer.

CANCER EXPERT, BORN IN SAMPSON DEAD

(Nashville Christian Advocate)
Dr. William Faison, a distinguished physician of Jersey City, N. J., died on February 27. He was born on a farm in Sampson county, N. C. More than twenty years ago he went to New York and later settled in Jersey City, where he climbed to first rank in his profession. Dr. Faison was a specialist in the radium treatment of cancer and was regarded as one of the leading American authorities in this line of endeavor. He was the founder and head of the Fairmont Hospital in Jersey City and was on the surgical staff of St. Francis, St. Mary's, the German, and the City Hospital in the metropolitan district, where his work had won him wide distinction as a physician and surgeon. In his cancer treatment he had at great expense acquired an unusually large quantity of radium. He had recently been placed in charge of this work for the county in which Jersey City is situated. Dr. Faison was an elder in the Presbyterian Church. The relieving of suffering was to him a Christian privilege and duty.

MEN WANTED!
Harnett County's Board of Commissioners want men, and is willing to pay for them at the rate of ten dollars per head. The class of men wanted by the Commissioners are those who operate booze manufactories. The sheriff's forces go out in the bushes and find these establishments and bring in the equipment, but when no one appears to set up claim to the property it is sold to junk dealers at a great deal lower price than the owners paid. What the county most desires, however, is representative of the monkey rum establishment to call in person and settle with the Recorder for the privilege of operating the business.
In pursuance of this desire on the part of the county, the Commissioners at their Monday session made some alterations in their method of operation. It is stated hereafter when a liquor mill is taken by the deputies, only ten dollars will be paid for the mill, but an extra ten dollars will be paid for each representative summoned in

"Slimy Taste"
"When I feel stupid, get constipated, or bilious, I take a good dose or two of Black-Draught and it sets me straight," writes Mr. George B. Haislep, of R. F. D. 2, Columbia, S. C. "It cleanses the liver and I feel all right, and have not used any other medicine as I do not see the need of it. I am a guard at the State Reformatory, and have been for three or more years. When I first heard of
BLACK-DRAUGHT
Liver Medicine
and the good medicine it was, I had been having a tired feeling when I'd get up in the morning. I would be stiff and sore, and had a slimy, bad taste in my mouth, but didn't think so much of it till I began to feel stupid and didn't feel like eating—then I knew I needed medicine. It was then I began Black-Draught, and I felt all made over, ready for any kind of work, ready to eat and sleep. So, for any return of this trouble, I take Black-Draught, and for 25 years it has been my medicine, and I wouldn't be without it for anything. I am out of doors, and fresh air and Black-Draught are all the medicines I need. I recommend it to others for I know it is good."
