

They Advise Not To Hurry Sale of Cotton.

World Will Urgently Need 12,000,000 Bales Crop, Say Cotton Merchants

New York, May 14.—J. W. Jay and Co., well known cotton commission merchants, say in their cotton letter just issued: "We strongly advise our Southern friends to refrain from sending their cotton for sale. Every bale will be badly needed before new cotton will be ready for market. They add that the world will urgently need a minimum crop of 12,000,000 bales next season.

The letter in part is as follows: "According to reports from our Southern friends, regarding mill curtailment, eight Fall River mills stopped work for two days this week, suspending Monday.

"The remaining supply of cotton is so small that the mills of the world using American cotton will have to curtail their operations to an average of about four days per week for the next four months. Last year about this time, Fall River mills were closed on account of strikes and lockouts. Every effort was being made to reduce expenses. Unemployment existed. Foreign affairs were as unsettled as now and yet consumption of American cotton, according to Hester, was 12,000,000 bales for the year.

"This season for nine months, ending April 30th, consumption was on a basis of 15,000,000 bales. September 14th is about the earliest that new cotton can reach the mills. Assuming that consumption is cut to a yearly basis of 12,000,000 bales for the next four months and mills will require 4,500,000 plus stocks on route to mills, 1,500,000 a total of 6,000,000 bales. To meet this need on May first, American and foreign mills had about 2,450,000 plus the visible 1,815,000, plus uncounted cotton and on farms 800,000, a total of 5,065,000. Thus by curtailing from a 15,000,000 bale to a 12,000,000 bale basis, mills will still need more cotton than exists.

"Nowhere do we hear the assertion that consumption will be on yearly basis below 10,000,000 bales, and yet that is what must happen during the next four months to make the supply last."

No joy is comparable to that which comes from doing your job well.

Nervous Break-Down

MRS. ANNIE LANGRISH, of R. F. D. 1, Burlington, Tex., writes as follows regarding her experience with Cardui: "Some time ago I had a nervous breakdown of some kind. I was very weak and so nervous. I had intestinal spells and suffered great distress from the weak, tremble, no-account feeling that anything else. I knew I needed a tonic, and needed it badly. I began the use of Cardui to see if I could get some strength, as I knew of other cases that had been helped by it. I soon saw a great improvement, so I kept it up. I used seven bottles of Cardui, and can say the money was well spent, for my strength and energy were well spent, and I was all my housework and a great deal of work besides."
If you are weak, run-down, nervous and suffer from the ailments peculiar to women, it is very likely that Cardui will help you, in the way it helped Mrs. Langrish and has helped thousands of others, during the past 40 years. Ask for, and insist on, Cardui.
