One of North Carolina's greatest needs—more college graduates on the farm.

Failure to pay just and honest debts is a mighty poor way to save money. Yet many save it by taking that route.

The fact that sweethearts buy more candy than husbands would indicate that most men make better sweethearts than husbands.

This is June 12, 1923, and Dunn is still in need of a modern hotel. See by the papers that Clinton is soon to have a $100,000 home for his visitors. If Clinton can, Dunn can.

"Why is it, a lady asks," that before marriage a husband wants to be with his sweetheart every night, and after marriage he had rather stay up town than at home? We pass the question on to the husbands.

A large placard bearing these words, "For sale cheap," and a n. g. check pasted underneath can be seen in some of the local store windows. That sort of advertising should wield an influence against the passing of worthless checks, too many of which change hands.

Warning The Public
'Tis pity, pity 'tis, 'tis true that it is necessary to wage a "Stop, Look and Listen" campaign every now and then to impress upon a hurrying public that it is necessary to take a look up and down the railroad track before driving across it. Even now, the American Railway Association is financing a "Care-

To Fight Liquor
Judging from his attitude Thursday, Recorder M. M. Jernigan will make the life of violators of the prohibition laws in this part of the moral vineyard a hard one. "If you wish to make whiskey, sell whiskey, drink whiskey or deal in whiskey in any way, you had better move out of my jurisdiction," he told some who faced him on the charge of violating the whiskey laws at his first court. This statement would lead one to believe that "he has it in" for liquor law violator, and well he should feel that way. The liquor traffic is perhaps the greatest problem with which the average recorder has to grapple. The great majority of cases coming under his jurisdiction result directly or indirectly from that one cause. Strength to the newly-elected recorder in his determined effort to stamp out the curse.

Explanation in Order
Under the caption, "Monkey Business," the Harnett County News in its last issue expressed a disapproval of the attitude of the board of county commissioners towards paying bills for service rendered the county by individuals and firms. The News states that on the first Monday there were accounts submitted and sworn to from reliable firms from whom goods and services had been secured by the county's regularly constituted officials, adding that these accounts, some of them at least, were not even given a glance by the board. The News then asks, "Why this attitude, gentlemen?"

The Dispatch believes in curtailing the expense of operating the county government, where the curtailing process does not conflict with good government and progress, but it also believes that there is a danger of bounding too conservatively. A county, like an individual, of necessity must spend money. The laborer is entitled to his hire and legitimate bills due individuals or firms by the county should be paid and paid promptly.

The News editorial levels one to believe that in their efforts to "cut down expenses" the board of county commissioners are neglecting to pay bills rendered for services to the county. If that be true then the board is over zealous in its attempt to curtail operating expenses. The board should make clear its position in regard to the charges brought, which in a way, reflect upon the "good pay" standing of Harnett county.

A Great Mother

Calls for "the best mother in the world"—the American Red Cross—has been numerous even in the Carolinas during the past year, and the "mother" has responded nobly to each and every call. When New Bern was swept by fire a few months ago the American Red Cross was first on the scene, rendering assistance to the unfortunate. Then a few months later a cyclone wrought havoc in Wake county, and again the Red Cross was quick to master the situation, providing temporary homes for the victims whose places of abode had been swept away in a moment's time. Following close upon the heels of the Wake county disaster came the Cleveland, S. C., school fire. Before the ashes had cooled the "mother" was on the scene, rendering aid where aid was needed. "mother." That is one of the reasons why all people should support this, one of the greatest of humanitarian institutions. The American Red Cross is ever in readiness and willing to go to the rescue of the unfortunate, not only in the homeland, but throughout the world. Membership in the American Red Cross is a thing to be desired, in that it renders aid where and when aid is most needed.

DUKE NEWS

Duke, June 7.—While Joseph M. Core, of a local grocery store here, was delivering his daily orders of groceries Tuesday afternoon in the western part of town he happened to a rather perplexing experience to the truck which he was driving. Leaving said truck with the engine running and the brakes on, Mr. Core went inside with the customer's order of groceries. Returning in a short while he was astonished to find the truck missing, and began to look about twenty yards from where he was standing, he went to see if any one had seen his car. At the foot of the street to a twenty-foot embankment; from under which Mr. Core had heard audible voices. What was his surprise upon looking downward to see his machine in an upright position, it having taken the twenty foot plunge off the precipice and coming to a stop with "heads up." The damage done was very slight, only a tire being punctured and five gallons of oil spilled.

Thoughtful bridge just outside of town on the Coats road was blown up today with dynamite to make way for a much wider bridge. The new bridge is to be a much better structure, and will be constructed in such a way as to enable automobiles to pass. Herebefore, one had to stop until the motorist coming towards him had passed, but now that nuisance is stopped.

Work on the new highway road from Bule's Creek to Dunn has started near here. This new road will be of much help to many, as it cuts the distance down several miles from here to Raleigh and other points. Besides this stretch of highway will open up a section of one of the best producing regions of Harnett, which of late has not had much of an outlet because of the bad roads.

Born to ex-Judge and Mrs. E. L. Godwin, of Dunn, a fine boy at Good Hope hospital. Mother and son are getting along nicely.

Mrs. E. M. Bule, and son, Roderick, Jr., are spending several weeks with Mrs. Bule's parents at Woodland.

Miss Bethel Cooke, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, spent several days here this week, the guest of Miss Whitney Holt. Miss Cooke stopped over here on her way home from Saint Mary's school, Raleigh, where she and Miss Holt were students the past session.

FLAMES DESTROY GREAT TRAIN SHED

Million Dollars Damage At Philadelphia Station; Many Narrow Escapes

Philadelphia, June 11.—Fire early today practically destroyed the train shed of the Broad street station, the Philadelphia terminus of the Pennsylvania railroad. A quantity of mail and baggage and a number of passenger coaches also were burned.

The flames spread westward and did not reach the main building containing the waiting rooms and ticket offices. These, however, were damaged by water. The general offices of the company were not damaged.

There was no official estimate of the loss, but it was believed it would approximate at least $1,000,000.

A large number of firemen were overcome by smoke, but no one was seriously injured.

Outgoing train service was delayed several hours. Passengers on incoming trains were discharged at the West Philadelphia station and brought to the center of the city by automobile or trolley. When outgoing service was restored all trains left from the West Philadelphia station.

The Philadelphia and Reading railway established a thirty minute special train service to New York to take care of the heavy Monday morning traffic going to that city. The railroad also absorbed much of the up-state traffic, and the Baltimore and Ohio handled considerable additional business south.

Through South and West trains were delayed because of the local yard congestion.

Narrow Escapes
The fire started shortly after 1 a. m. under the shed which covers several acres, and spread so rapidly that many passengers in sleeping cars sat on the tracks had difficulty in making their escape. Dense volumes of smoke soon filled the sheds and poured into the waiting room and other parts of the station. Incoming passengers, however, managed to grope their way through and find the exits.

Hundreds of persons were waiting for outgoing trains outside the building when smoke began to come through the windows and doors. Intense excitement prevailed, and to add to the confusion the lights went out in some parts of the station.

Some of the arriving passengers spent the night at hotels, but the majority continued to their destinations when service was restored. Six alarms were sounded calling all the fire apparatus in the city to the scene. Hundreds of streams of water were poured on the flames, but it was not until the huge arch, extending from Fifteenth to Seventeenth streets and from Market to Filbert, was a mass of wreckage, that the firemen were able to check the blaze.

MILK SUBSTITUTE DEVISED FOR CALVES
A very satisfactory milk substitute for feeding calves after the second week has been devised by the United States Department of Agriculture. The mixture consists of 50 parts finely ground corn, 15 parts linseed-oil meal, 15 parts finely ground rolled oats, 10 parts dried blood flour, 10 parts skim-milk powder, and one half part of salt. It is stirred up with warm water at the rate of 1 pound of meal to 9 pounds of water. The feed is increased gradually as the whole milk is decreased, until at the time the calf is 50 days old it is getting only the gruel. At this time 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the meal mixed with water will constitute a day's feed. Whenever there are indications of scours, the feed must be reduced.

When calves are vigorous, the following schedule may be adhered to if changing from whole milk to the substitute:
First week Whole milk.
Second week Whole milk.
Third week Three parts whole milk, one part gruel.
Fourth week Three parts whole milk, one part gruel.
Fifth week Whole milk and gruel, equal parts.
Sixth week Whole milk, one part, gruel, three parts.
Seventh week All gruel.
Grain and roughage should be fed with milk substitutes the same as with separated milk. Milk has to be very high in price to justify the use of substitutes during the first two weeks of the calf's life.

Success For The Goose Should Be Success For The Gander
A Kansas editor sarcastically announces that he wants to buy a sack of flour, a pair of three-button trousers and a straw hat, and that he is ready to receive bids on the same. He says that it is the way the merchants do when they want $2 worth of jobwork.—Atlantic Globe.

JAMES LEE
The subject of sketch, who departed this life June 11, 1923, was in Cumberland county sixty-one years ago was orphaned at an early age. His father, S. W. Lee, was killed in the Civil War. In spite of all the advantages attendant upon him, James Lee educated himself and kept teaching for several years. Sold students are among those who most keenly his untimely passing, and speak his praise in unflattering terms sincerely.

At an early age he entered with the Free Will Baptist church and consistently lived to his profession and honored his church with a life of irrefragable conduct and character. In 1886 he was joined in wedlock to Miss Annie Barber, who with one son, Fred, and one daughter, Miss Mary, survive him. His oldest son, Eugene, was called to his reward in 1917.

His married life was an example of the old-fashioned faithfulness and devotion without ostentation or ostentation. He was a polite, courteous, attentive and a watchful collector of his father. In every way and detail domestic life he was a pattern. When Benson was little more than a postoffice he cast his lot with the man who sought his fortune here, and for years manager for Stokes Co. of Fayetteville, who did some of business in merchandising naval stores. His close application, duty, steady habits and sterling integrity won for him the highest respect of his patrons and employers. His confidence was shared alike by who had business relations with him. The writer subscribes with the sincerity of his soul to the eulogy.

An honest man is the most noble work of God, and those who know the life that James Lee lived, was best to know a character. The nice fortune he accumulated is not tainted, widow nor orphan will claim this in his or her belongings, unjustly gotten, nor will any teller say that unrequited labor helped to build.

He belongs to a class that seems to be fast passing away. He courted no favors with corruption; he bended no knees to duplicity and hypocrisy were held to him. There are men who seem to be loved for the character of the examples they make and we are glad to accord him this worthy distinction, as between right and wrong, and in justice, he held no middle ground. He was fearless, candid and courageous. He de-

His remains were taken to the burial ground of his wife's old home, near Clayton, where a host of friends and relatives paid him final tribute, attended with an abundance of beautiful floral offerings. Rev. A. T. Lester of the Presbyterian church, Rev. O. A. Keller, of the Baptist church and Rev. Luther Davis of the Free Will Baptist church, conducted the funeral services.

MANY STILL CAPTURED DURING PAST MONTH

Salisbury, June 11.—Federal prohibition agents operating in North Carolina captured 144 distilleries during May and poured out 1,740 gallons of beer, according to an announcement this morning by State Prohibition Director A. B. Coltrane. These figures indicate slight increase over the previous months of the year.
Eight automobiles were seized, 47 arrests made and 142 prosecutions recommended.

Thalhimer Brothers
RICHMOND, VA.
OFFICES: NEW YORK, LONDON, BELFAST, PARIS, BRUSSELS AND MILAN
We may have known your Grandmother
PERHAPS we could recall the day when Thalhimer Brothers opened their store back in 1842—81 years ago. Tradition says that there had never been seen in Richmond town such silks, such lovely poplins, such soft cashmere, such brilliant calicoes. Styles have changed, but traditions at Thalhimer Brothers have not. Quality is still invariably wrapped in every package—just as in your grandmother's day. Think of the wealth of experience gained in 81 years of catering to feminine fancy! That too is yours at this, Richmond's oldest and newest department store.
Many times during the year there are sales of unusual merit. News of these will gladly be sent you if you will send your name for our mailing lists. You constantly feel the need of a big metropolitan store such as this. Include the name of your bank or business references and we will open a charge account for you. It identifies you in Richmond.
