The County Fair

Last year a total of 163 fairs were staged in North Carolina. Of these 126 were county fairs, 36 were county fairs, and one State fair. Perhaps no one thing creates a greater degree of community interest and pride than the county or county fair.

The question is, Do the farmers take enough interest in their agricultural fairs? The chief purpose of a fair is to promote agricultural interests, and only the farmers themselves can make a fair what it is intended to be.

There is a tendency upon the part of the farmers to regard a county fair as a town institution, probably owing to the fact that such fairs are held in the towns. This idea should be removed from the minds of the people living in the rural districts.

The War is On

During the next two months the farmers of the Dunn district will engage in a battle that means much to the district as a whole. The boll weevils have already made their appearance in the cotton fields, and it is up to the cotton-growers to fight the weevil in every way known to them.

The Dunn Chamber of Commerce, through persistent effort, was successful in bringing to Dunn a boll weevil field station. The station is in charge of W. Bruce Mabie, Entomologist of the State Department of Agriculture.

Foolish Practices

Hundreds of bales of foreign grown hay are being hauled from the stores of Dunn to the farms of the Dunn district every week. This means that thousands of dollars are being sent away by the farmers that could, and should, be kept at home.

The Chamber's Plans

Properly organized and administered, a Chamber of Commerce occupies a field which is not covered by any other organization or by the national, State or city governments.

"Business men must get together to deal with common problems. It is highly important for the entire community that this be done, for the earning power of Boston is chiefly dependent upon the ability of business management to provide work for those engaged in industry."

"Retrench wherever we choose, there is one direction in which the community can never afford to do other than adequately support this vitally necessary central organization and to maintain it so fully that its efficiency will remain complete and its opportunities to serve our total public will be steadily enhanced."

Getting Results

Governor Morrison's plan for investigating the State and county prison systems appears to be getting results. The solicitors are co-operating with the Attorney General in the investigating program, and relief may be expected where relief is needed.

In this prison investigation plan it would seem that Governor Morrison was right and his critics were wrong. The State is advancing towards a modern prison system under the plan outlined by the governor.

The Court's Duty

One of the sad features about a bank failure is, that in practically every instance the funds of widows and children are involved. We have known several instances where widows were among the heaviest losers in bank failures.

Henry Ford is apparently running well, considering the fact that he is not classed either as a Democrat or a Republican. In all the straw balloting he seems to be leading the field.

Judge Collins denies that he is a Klucker, but Judge Grady has not seen fit to deny his allegations to be "invisible empire."

Senator Overman showed good political judgment in refusing to take a "million dollar ride" at the expense of the tax-payers.

Acted Wisely

A recent issue of The Dunn Dispatch was dedicated to the control of the boll weevil. The small town newspaper can render invaluable service to the farmer along this line, when it receives sufficient support from the merchants to justify making expensive investigation and obtaining information that will be useful in the extermination of these cotton destroyers.

fields in great throng—Red Springs Citizen.

A note of optimism is seen in connection with business in general. It would be still more prominent were there not so many other notes floating around—Manila Bulletin.

Rum And Gasoline

Rum and gasoline do not mix, in fact, the action of gasoline in connection with a rum saturated is about as dangerous a combination as the public has to contend with in those days.

One of the greatest needs of farmers in Stanley county is more legume hay, states County Agent O. E. Phillips, after three years in the county. One farmer took this advice to heart and kept his live-stock in better condition last winter than ever before with one third less grain.

Clean drinking water is essential for all live-stock. Foul water is a good place to pick up disease. 666 quickly relieves Constipation, Bilioussness, Headaches Colds and Lagrippe.
