

Driver Of Death Car Doesn't Make Stop Keeps On At High Speed After Killing Little Watha Girl

Wallace, Oct. 1.—The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Rivonark, living near Watha, about ten miles south of here was so seriously injured by a passing automobile Sunday afternoon that she died two hours later without giving consciousness. The little girl was standing with her father and some little friends, when the car was seen coming at a terrific speed down the highway, the father tried to gather the children together, and from the course of the car, but it turned towards the yard to pass another car which was standing still in front of the house, and caught the little girl on the bumper, carrying her more than 100 yards before she was hurled by the roadside, her head being injured, the left arm and leg broken.

The occupants of the car did not halt a moment, but continued toward Wallace, and a car supposed to be the one was taken into custody just before it reached town. Friends coming by a few minutes after the terrible affair, assisted the grief-stricken mother and father, and within a surprisingly short time had two doctors from Wallace and one from Burgaw on the scene, but there was nothing they could do for the little victim, who apparently was not conscious of any pain.

Chatham County Man Victim Of Accident

Pittsboro, Oct. 2.—A distressing accident occurred Saturday night in New Hope township, this county, when Robert C. Farrell, a farmer of that township, while attempting to cross Prince's bridge in a buggy over New Hope creek near Seaforth on the Raleigh road, was met on the bridge by a car occupied by four young white men by the name of Lassater, Holt, Sauls and Hearn, who, it is alleged, had no lights on their car, and who tried to pass him. The bridge was entirely too narrow for two vehicles to pass and in some manner Mr. Farrell was thrown over the railing of the bridge, falling about 20 feet and landing on some logs, which rendered him unconscious. The young men carried him to a nearby house and he was rushed to Rex hospital, where he died.

Strange to say, the horse and buggy were found a few miles

Claims Conditions In Oklahoma Not So Bad Former Harnett Resident Says Martial Law Was Calmly Received

Conditions in Oklahoma are not as turbulent as the press reports indicate, according to J. E. Abbott, of Tulsa, who formerly lived in Harnett county, this State. He writes The News and Observer that although martial law has been declared there have been no casualties.

"You folks back home," writes Mr. Abbott, have read some alarming reports about Oklahoma and particularly about Tulsa in the newspapers. Doubtless many of you are concerned about friends and relatives out here, while others probably have gained the impression that this is one of the last places on earth where a good, home-loving citizen would care to live.

"Well, that's a mistaken idea; furthermore, there isn't any war or riot going on in this part of the country. In fact, since martial law was declared, there has not been a single call made upon the soldiers to quell any riotous disturbances, so of course there have been no casualties. Life goes on normally here just as it does everywhere else in the country."

Tulsa, Mr. Abbott says in his letter, is a city of 100,000 population, with many churches and a magnificent school system presided over by P. P. Claxton, former U. S. Commissioner of Education.

His letter was written on September 27, before the situation had reached its most acute stage.—Raleigh News and Observer.

The annual report of the New York Cotton Exchange contains an item, "Food for cats, $51.73." In spite of all precautions, rats and mice occasionally appeared on the trading floor. Traps have been employed in vain and the cats are the mainstay in combating the nuisance. The rats eat the ticker tape, often destroying several rolls at a time. Spot, the dean of the Exchange cats, spends the night on the trading floor, sleeping in the cigarette room during the day when the Exchange closes.

down the road with not a break in buggy or harness and the car was not damaged. The deceased was 49 years of age and is survived by his wife and nine children, the oldest being 17 years old and the youngest two months old.

Father Makes Heroic Rescue Of His Child Fell Into Unused Well on Farm Near Scotland Neck

Scotland Neck, Sept. 28.—News has reached here of an unusual accident and rescue, when the two-and-a-half-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Maynard fell into an old unused well on their farm, near here. The well was a hundred feet deep, but the child was caught in its fall between the curbing which had caved in and the side of the well about one foot from the water. Mr. Maynard, on hearing the child's scream, rushed to its assistance with a rope, which he managed to drop in a loop around his shoulders, and thus frantically grasping the rope he was drawn to within five feet of the surface when the curbing caved and the father with difficulty threw the child out and clung to the side of the well until assistance came. Mr. Maynard said the well had been covered with boards and thrown over it, and he does not know how the opening was made through which the child fell. He immediately called the farm hands and the well was promptly filled with dirt. The child was brave and terribly frightened, but otherwise uninjured.

Mebane Negro Holds Record For Children

Mebane, Oct. 1.—"Uncle" Hence Kimbrough holds the record, so far as is known for children. He died recently at his home at Corbett and was the father of thirty-five children and two hundred grandchildren. He married four times, and it is said he invariably selected his next wife at the funeral of the last. The youngest child is less than a year old and the oldest sixty. He was a well-known "old-time" darkey, holding the respect of both white and colored.

Arabian sheiks are carrying vacuum bottles now. All the better equipped caravans that trek out of Aden across the desert are equipped with vacuum bottles, and it is now possible to have a cooling drink in the midst of the Arabian desert.

Corn yields may be more surely and easily increased by the use of good seed than in any other way. The way to select this seed is from the fields in the fall. America spends $7,000,000 in one year for works of art in Great Britain alone.

DISPLAY of the new body changes in Ford cars makes our exhibit at the Fair of unusual interest.

Not only is the appearance improved by the new body types but comfort and utility are increased.

As a business man, you will be interested in the Fordson and Ford Truck exhibit. You may be able to effect many savings by adapting one or both these units to your needs.

A showing of a number of new tools developed for use with the Fordson will make you realize how farming is easier and more profitable with a Fordson.

There is something of interest for everyone at the Ford exhibit.
