Dunn's Best Fair
The consensus of opinion of the thousands of people who visited the fair here last week was that it was by far the best fair ever staged in Dunn. This being true, the question arises, What made it such? We can answer this question in one word—co-operation.

The fair this year was worthy of the great agricultural districts surrounding Dunn. The exhibits in the various departments depicted vividly the agricultural life and the prosperity of the four counties represented in the big show. It was a fair that is calculated to bear fruits for good. It portrayed what can be, and is being, done on the farms of this section of the State. It was just the sort of fair that we had hoped to see here, the sort of fair which we knew could be staged in Dunn. The success of the 1923 fair should encourage the masses to work together for even a greater showing of the agricultural industry of the Dunn District next year.

Another outstanding feature of the big fair last week which we would mention was the good order which prevailed. This played its part in making the fair the enjoyable occasion that it was. The good order and friendly spirit in evidence throughout the fair was remarkable, considering the immensity of the crowds. All told, it was an ideal fair.

A Signal Honor
The town of Dunn shares with Rev. A. E. McQueen, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, the signal honor bestowed upon him last Friday at Red Springs when he was elected chaplain of the Scottish Society of America. That the clan showed prudence in electing Mr. McQueen chaplain of this continent-wide organization, not one whose good fortune it is to know the man harbors any doubt. In a search throughout the United States and Canada a more worthy man for this post could not have been found. Mr. McQueen is of a quiet, unassuming nature, but is the type of man who makes friends and holds them. His citizenship is an asset to any town or community. The Dispatch is delighted at this honor so worthily bestowed and is sure that the same feeling exists generally with the citizenship of Dunn.

How We See It
The Dispatch believes that in discontinuing the $25 a month formerly allowed towards defraying the expense of a negro farm demonstration agent the board of commissioners of Harnett county acted unwisely. We have kept somewhat in touch with the work done by A. D. Herring, the agent, and he has been faithful and diligent in his work among the negro farmers. The farm demonstration agent who is "on the job" is of untold worth to the farming class, and with the change in the farming system made necessary by the coming of the boll weevil, the work of the agent will be even more important. The farmer who feels that he knows all there is to know about farming will be faced with a new problem. In other words, the farmer must turn over a new leaf if he is to succeed under boll weevil conditions.

If the work done among the white farmers by the white demonstration agent pays, then the work done among the negro farmers by the negro agent pays also. In fact, we believe that the field for this sort of work is greater among the negro farmers than it is among the white. The action of the board of commissioners may have been prudent, but we fail to see it that way.

Are you talking a new hotel for Dunn? If not, why not?

Dunn is included in the honor roll of North Carolina towns which had no fires in September. Every citizen should strive to keep it there.

We take it that the row in Chatham county will be worth more to McLean politically than any address that he could have delivered. Politics is a peculiar animal.

Mr. Yellowley points to North Carolina as an example of dry law enforcement. This would lead one to believe that it is an easy matter to get a drink in other States.

We wouldn't argue that a man who breaks into a newspaper office for the purpose of robbery isn't mentally off. He is either that or mistaken in the place.

The casualty lists resulting from automobile wrecks during the past week-end are alarming. In one instance nine lives were snuffed out, while in another eight were killed outright. And yet, it does not appear that the large death tolls of carelessness serves to check the hurry of auto drivers.
