For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lenoir, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable aching tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to a group of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

Nine Major Local Bills Passed By Legislature

17 Counties In State Given Right To Vote For Legalized Liquor During Closing Minutes Of Legislature

The Legislature of 1935 adjourned at three o'clock Saturday afternoon after passing laws which will allow 17 counties and two resort towns to sell liquor if the majority of their citizens vote wet.

These new local liquor laws—enacted in the last hectic session, despite the frantic, eleventh hour efforts of Governor Ehringhaus and leaders of the legislature—are without equal throughout the country.

If the local elections are won by the wets, half of Eastern North Carolina will have legal liquor, as results of the acts of Legislature, yet the state will have no control over the liquor business and not get one cent of revenue therefrom.

The counties which are to decide whether or not they will have legal liquor are: New Hanover, Pasquotank, Carteret, Craven, Pitt, Martin, Beaufort, Halifax, Wilson, Edgecombe, Greene, Lenoir, Warren, Vance, Nash, Rockingham, Franklin, and possibly Onslow. Pinehurst and Southern Pines are the two resorts of all municipalities in the state which were given the right to go wet without county action.

Since the adjournment Saturday there has been talk of a special session of the legislature to thrash out more fully the liquor question. The Governor alone has the power to call a special session.

Some of the most important matters disposed of by the legislature of state-wide interest include the following:

Under the wine measure, ratified Saturday, the county commissioners may prohibit the sale, but not the manufacture of beverages made from fruit juices, except in a few dry divisions.

When revenue and appropriations measures held the center of the stage in mid-session, a few changes were made in taxes, but the principal one aside from wiping out current sales tax exemptions except on milk, was to provide a brand new tax on chain filling stations. The fight waged by the McDonald-Lumpkin bloc against retention of the sales tax and lastly against the three per cent rate and for food exemptions was one of the most pronounced.

Included in the more than $64,000,000 appropriations was sufficient money to raise salaries of state employees and the 23,000 teachers by 20 per cent in 1935-36 and 25 per cent in 1936-37 if revenues permit. Appropriations for all departments, institutions, and services were boosted as more tax money was sighted.

NEW MOTOR LAW

In the motor vehicle classification, the legislature wrote into law a state-wide drivers' license system, providing that all operators of motor vehicles with at least one year of experience may secure their permits without cost by November 1. It will become effective that date.

Owners of passenger cars will benefit by the slash from 55 cents to 40 cents a hundredweight in the cost of license tags. The rate of reduction was 27 per cent, and marked the prin-

the back door. His name begins with a "K."

The Rambler's nomination for one of the most immaculate looking young men in Waynesville—Tony Davis.

You've heard of barber shop and bath room tenors—those fellows who sing so melodiously in such places, but never a cheap out of them anywhere else. Well, they're bad enough but we have something worse along the skyline. You might call this greater nuisance a Nightingale tenor. They only sing at night as they go along the street in the darkness and they provoke a gale of wrath from folks who are trying to sleep. I'm agin 'em.

True to his promise the Rambler joined the religious and semi-religious folks of the town and went to the Presbyterian church Sunday night to hear the Reverend Mr. Williams, the evangelist. The church was full but Ralph Prevost, in striped trousers and brown coat, found the Rambler a seat. It's quite a sight to see the deacons try to jump that center aisle furnace register. Dr. Walker welcomed all the visitors in his courteous fashion. John West played the organ, Mrs. Richeson played the piano, Mr. Hardin and Mr. Baucum prayed—Dr. Walker evidently thought that crowd needed two prayers—nearly everybody sang, and then Mr. Williams preached a mighty good sermon that the whole town should have heard. He said that Christ couldn't do any mighty works in Nazareth because the Nazarenes didn't want Him to and that the same thing was true in Waynesville and the world today. You see the Rambler, unlike some of the others, stayed awake.

The Rambler got up early this morning (Tuesday) and the world was good to look upon. Everything was wet and green and the sun was coming over the hills to the East like a warming burst of friendship. Except for the singing of birds the world was utterly quiet. Like the stage of a great theater had risen, was set and the curtain had risen, the everything was in readiness for the opening act. Only the characters were needed. Oh, I tell you, it was wonderful!

And now, if you'll excuse me, I think I'll take a nap.

Commissioners Bill, Change In Collection of Taxes Together With Abolishing Absentee Votes Outstanding

As the smoke of the 123-day battle of the North Carolina General Assembly cleared away, there loomed on the horizon at least 10 outstanding laws which were passed for this county as sponsored by Representative J. T. Bailey. Twenty-seven bills were introduced by Mr. Bailey.

The first, and perhaps the one that caused the most comment, was the commissioners bill. The board was increased from three to seven members, and provision made for the election of the board from the respective districts of the county instead of county-wide.

The tax collecting was moved from the sheriff's office and put under the one office of tax supervisor. The office of delinquent tax collector was abolished under this bill.

The advertising of delinquent taxes was changed from April first to July first.

Another bill specified that the county auditor should have the approval of the local government commission in Raleigh before serving.

A bill was passed which would allow the towns of Hazelwood and Waynesville to issue joint bonds for the construction of a sewer system.

The town of Waynesville was authorized in a bill to operate a library and, if approved by the voters, to levy a tax not exceeding six per cent for the upkeep.

Changes were made in the election laws of Canton.

The absentee ballot law for this county was abolished.

The property of Lake Junaluska Assembly was exempt from taxation.

equal tax out of the session.

The legislators also doubled the size of the state highway patrol and relaxed the patrolmen of the routine duties of gathering samples of gasoline and oil, this task reverting to the department of agriculture, which tests the products. The patrolmen, however, had their duties increased as they will be vested after July 1 with a certain amount of police power. Also, they will operate as a division of highway safety under the state department of revenue.

PROVIDE NEW BUILDINGS

A bond issue of $600,000 for construction of buildings at Caswell Training school at Kinston, and at hospitals for the insane at Raleigh, Morganton, and Goldsboro was provided. A legislative investigation was made of the conditions of the Morganton institution after charges of mistreatment of patients and employees of the hospital had been brought.

The committee found inadequate facilities there in their report.

Another new institution was provided when a $250,000 bond issue was voted for construction of a new tuberculosis sanatorium somewhere in Western North Carolina.

The legislature witnessed a fight to repeal the absentee ballot laws or strengthen the requirements on a state-wide basis, but the proponents met defeat. Several counties secured abolition of absentee voting locally, and made other changes.

SET UP TEXT BOOK SYSTEM

The state-wide school book rental system sailed through the Assembly after considerable bawling, and the state treasurer was authorized to issue $1,500,000 in bonds with the approval of the council of state to finance the purchase of the volumes needed. A textbook commission to administer the act was set up. Proponents claim the act will have hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly to school patrons, but those parents who wish to continue purchasing books for their children will be allowed to do so.

Turning to executions, the legislature substituted a lethal gas chamber for the electric chair as an instrument of death at the central prison here, and all persons sentenced to die for capital felonies in the future will come under the new act. Those already under sentence will die by electrocution. The gas chamber will be installed by July 1.

Charges of mistreatment of prisoners in the highway and public works penal division caused a special legislative probe. Two negro prisoners, who were forced to have their feet amputated because of alleged mistreatment in the Mecklenburg case, will be provided with artificial limbs and given permanent jobs under a law passed.

PWA BILLS PASSED

The legislature enacted into law a number of measures submitted by the national administration in Washington to provide for full state participation in Public Works administration loans, and the state may secure sufficient money under the moves to construct a new office building said to be badly needed adjacent to Capitol square. The bills will enable the state, counties and municipalities to speed up their applications for funds, and will simplify the compliance with requirements.

The rural electrification measures submitted from Washington were substituted with bills prepared here to meet requirement of the state and they were given full approval by PWA attorneys. Legislative leaders said power companies are expected to go ahead with plans for constructing some 9,000 miles of line in rural areas under the rural electrification authority created and through the local non-profit membership corporations, which will be exempt from taxes.

Occupational diseases and sufferers from them were placed under the terms and benefits of the workmen's compensation act.

NEW GAME LAWS

A new statewide game law placing every county fully under the state game and inland fisheries commissioner in the control of hunting, fishing and game preserves, was enacted, as were measures to aid in establishing state and national parks. Aimed at eradicating the danger of rabies in North Carolina, a law requiring dog owners to have their pets vaccinated against the disease was passed.

Predictions of a special session within 90 days were heard from legislative leaders, including Speaker Robert G. Johnson of the House.

There are a number of bills which have been introduced in the legislature which are of interest to the public. These are: A bill to provide for the construction of a new office building adjacent to the Capitol square. A bill to provide for the construction of a sewer system for the town of Waynesville. A bill to provide for the construction of a new tuberculosis sanatorium somewhere in Western North Carolina.
