Born in Shelby, N. C. on December 11, 1877, the son of a Confederate a my officer, Capt. S. A. and Mrs. harlie Boack Howy, his life story earls very much like a chapter out of fiction instead of real life.

The average North Carelinian not familiar with the intimate details of the Shelloy in n's early life would hardly realize that he has not at outled school since the age of 12 cars, except for a short law course n the University of North Cambina unmater school. Yet his self-orlica ion, started in boyhood when it beame necessary to leave school order to earn his livelihood, has been o thorough that for years he has een ranked as one of the state's lead ig attorneys and one of the South's ost outstanding orators

He worked on a farm, while not at ending school, until the age of 12 then entered a printing office and began work as "the snop devil" o learn the trade. At the ag, of 17 be purchased, on credit, the newpaper for which he worked and be ame publisher and editor thereof, When only 20 years of age he was elected to the State Legislature serving two terms in the house and one in the State Senate. He studied law, in the meantime, at night at home and during the rare few hours of leisure at the printing office, where he was still one of the printers as well as owner and editor. Following a brief study of law one summer at Carolina, he obtained his law license. when just 21 years of age, and began the practice of law in connection with his newspaper work. In 1908, after 14 years as "devil," printer and edtor-lawyer, he disposed of his newsand bras full time to the practice of law.

Few men have participated in mor political campaigns for the Demo ratic party and, during the last wenty years, he has spoken in prac-ically all of the 100 counties it North Carolina. New Text Book Rental Law Will Save Patrons Money

Raleigh.-Parents and guardians of public school pupils will save two-thirds the cost of textbooks next fall when North Carolina's school doors open for the 1935-36 term. Ratified Saturday was the law which sets up a state-wide system for the rental of textbooks to be used in elementary and high schools.

The law provides for the establish-Finte books before congress and ment of a textbook rental commission journed. Doughton replied. "Of which will administer the rental system. The commission will be comschools, who will be chairman, the last year on its 14 per cent commis-attorney general, the director of pur-chase and contract, and two other persons to be named by the governor. Under the supervision of the commission textbooks will be rented to pupils at a cost not to exceed onehad the cost of the books. The law apressly provides for the disinfecon of textbooks after they have been used by one pupil and before they are rented to another, and explicitly forbids the interchange of books between races so that textbooks rented to negroes cannot be rented to whites and vice versa. The latter two provisions were incorporated in senate amendments to the measure, as were two others which provide that parents or guardians may purchase textbooks in-tead of renting them if they so desire and that no depository for text- same amount in the even that the books other than a state agency can original grant should prove insuffibe named by the commission.

For many years a private company, Alfred Williams & company, of Raleigh, a book and office equipment concern, has been designated as the state textbook depository and has received through the textbook companies a ten per cent commission on all textbooks sold in North Carolina, Author of the amendment which eliminated Alfred Williams & company, was Senator Lee Gravely, of Nash, Representative Gregg Cherry, of Gaston, told the lower house that the posed of the state superintendent of Raleigh concern made about $46,000

An amendment by Senator Johnson, of Duplin, to require that all textbook companies selling books to the state to maintain warehouses and distribution systems in the state was If it had been because of its being the state textwook adopted a sufficient mark-up in price of textbooks to at least take care of the increased cost by reason of the warehouses would have been made.

The law provides that $1,500,000 shall be used from the state's general fund to purchase textbooks in order to start the system. As an added precaution the governor and the council of state are authorized to issue bonds to the extent of the cient to set up the system.
