Sunday School Convention To Meet Tuesday At Clyde

The Haywood County Sunday School convention will meet at the Clyde Methodist church, according to an announcement made this week by Hawkins B. Freeman, vice president of the organization.

The convention is for all denominations of the county. A splendid program has been prepared and there will be three sessions, morning, afternoon and night. Each school should send at least six delegates and as many others as possible. Dinner will be served on the ground and all are asked to bring basket lunches.

The night session will be in the interest of young people's work, but all are invited, adults as well as young people. A beautiful dramatization will be put on at the night session, entitled, "Daily Needs."

A penant will be given at the close of the night session to the school making the best record of attendance during the entire three sessions.

Rev. Shuford Peeler, general secretary of the State association in Salisbury, will be present and take part, as well as local people.

Strange -but- True

More persons are accidentally killed in farm work than in any other occupational pursuit. The National Safety Council estimates that 4,000 were killed in 1934 agricultural mishaps as compared with 1900 in manufacturing and 2300 in construction.

Fire arms account for 3,100 accident fatalities each year according to the National Safety Council. It is significant that 52 per cent of the various victims are between the ages of 10 and 29.

36,000 persons were killed on the highways in automobile accidents in 1934.

Automobile accidents resulting fatally showed an increase in the cities and a decrease in the rural areas during the first four months of 1935.

Every Fourth of July there is a national casualty list of at least 50 persons blinded in one or both eyes from fire works.

Heat And Flies Affect Milk Flow

The month of July brings with it a number of problems for the North Carolina dairyman and he must be prepared to protect his cows from the effects of heat, flies and short pastures.

"Cows that are continually annoyed by heat and flies will not produce as much milk as those which do not suffer from these two mid-summer ailments," says John A. Arrey, dairy extension specialist at State College.

In the first place, an ample supply of shade and water should be in every pasture. When it comes to protection from flies, the best thing to do is to rid the premises of the breeding places of these pests. The stalls and manure pit should be cleaned at least once each week and when practical it is best to haul the manure directly from the cow barn to the field each day. Certainly, no accumulation of litter or garbage should be allowed about the dairy. It is impossible to destroy all flies in the larvae stage, therefore poisons, traps and sprays must be used. There are several good fly sprays which are effective in keeping flies off the cows.

Arrey points out further that pastures begin to deteriorate in late summer. Usually in July, the grass begins to be short and tough as a result of dry weather. It contains less food value than earlier in the season and temporary grazing crops are needed. If a dairyman does not have these temporary grazing crops, it is a wise plan to feed some silage, to increase the grain feed and to raise its protein content that the milk flow might be maintained.

There is no need for the highly bred dairy animal to suffer in summer, if given the proper care. Plenty of fresh water, sufficient shade, protection from flies, and supplementary feeding will allow the cows to go along in normal production, Arrey says.

Farm Problems And Answers

Question: My hogs seem to be infected with lice. What should I do to control the pests?

Answer: Grease the pigs with waste oil from the automobile. This will kill lice and other external parasites affecting the animals. However, do not expose the pigs to direct sunlight immediately after greasing them.

Question: Is it a good practice to plant cowpeas on tobacco land when the crop is "laid by"?

Answer: It certainly is. The cowpeas will improve the land if plowed under or may be used for a supply of legume hay. The tobacco will not be injured as the bottom leaves will be primed by the time the peas begin full growth. Usually, however, it is best to use the peas for soil improvement and the vines will not make much growth unless the tobacco ripens and is harvested early. Progressive tobacco growers are not afraid to improve their land nowadays because they have found they can use more plants to the row or balance the fertilizer to take care of the increased fertility supplied by legumes.

Question: My bean vines are being destroyed by beetles. How can I combat them?

Answer: Dust with magnesium arsenate. Mexican bean beetles have appeared in large numbers this season and will be very destructive to late snap beans unless control measures are used. The insects may be controlled with a magnesium arsenate dust or spray of by using the new Rotenone dust. This latter is being recommended quite generally now because it is non-poisonous to humans but it is more expensive than the magnesium arsenate. If you have only a few rows of beans in the garden, very good results may be secured by picking the adult beetles each day.

Question: How should land be prepared for the first seeding of alfalfa?

Answer: A well prepared seed bed is necessary for best results in growing alfalfa and for this reason the land should be plowed fairly deep and be thoroughly pulverized with a disc and harrow. The land should be allowed to stand at least a month after this preparation in order that it may settle. Frequent harrowings during that period will give good results. As fall seeding is usually more satisfactory in the Piedmont and Coastal Plain sections the land should be prepared the last of July or early August so that it will be ready for seeding from September 1 to 30.

Timely Notes For Orchards, Gardens

July suggestions for the orchard and garden, as recommended by Prof. M. E. Gardner, head of the horticultural department at N. C. College, are:

Make additional plantings of snap beans. Spray beans where they are infected by the Mexican bean beetle. Magnesium arsenate is good. Rotenone or pyrethrum dusts and sprays are also effective, but somewhat expensive.

Spray the tomatoes with Bordeaux mixture to control leaf spot and blight. Plants for a fall crop of tomatoes should be set in July. Late Irish potatoes should be planted during the latter part of the month. Keep egg plants covered with Bordeaux mixture to control flea beetles and potato beetles. Cultivate all crops often enough to keep down weeds and prevent baking of the soil. A side dressing of some form of quickly available nitrogen will help vegetables whose growth has been slow.

After raspberries have been harvested, the old fruiting canes should be removed and burned. Frequent shallow cultivation should be continued until frost.

Don't let up in the fight against insects and disease in the orchard and vineyard. Spray protection is needed to aid the development of perfect fruit. Spray thoroughly at the right time with the right materials—it pays big dividends.

Fruit trees and grape vines which do not have a dark green foliage are lacking in vigor. A second application of quickly available nitrogen will be helpful.

The Dormouse

A dormouse is a small Old world rodent somewhat resembling a small squirrel, although the tail is not particularly bushy. It lives in trees and feeds on nuts and acorns. The name, which means "sleeping mouse," alludes to the fact that the dormouse becomes torpid in cold weather in its natural habitat.
