The principal feature of the pro-gram was the talk given by Mr. W. E. Bird, dean of the Western Carolina Teachers College, who addressed the club on "Ballads." Dean Bird first followed the history of the ballad, giving as the best definition of this type of song the telling of a tale in song. He discussed at length the difference between the English and the American ballad. The English ballad is usually based on a story of the community given in detail, while the other may be based on any story. As illustrating some of the points brought out in his talk, Dean Bird sang, "Edward," "Merrie Golden Tree," and Paper of Pins," old Eng-
