

Survey For Blind Underway In This County By Penland

List Of All Persons Who Cannot Read Even With Use Of Glasses Being Compiled

The state commission for the blind, which is conducting an exhaustive survey of the number of blind people in North Carolina and their needs, has appointed James Penland, of Hayesville, to conduct the survey in eight western counties, including Macon.

On a recent visit to Waynesville Mr. Penland said it is his purpose to contact, if possible, not only those who are totally blind but every person in the district who is suffering from badly impaired sight. The counties to be covered by Mr. Penland, in addition to Hayesville, are Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Swain, Jackson, Transylvania, and Macon.

In order to plan an intelligent and effective program of assistance for persons with defective vision Mr. Penland said, it is first necessary to know their number, the extent of their visual disability and their individual situation. With the aid of churches and schools, local civic clubs, and other interested persons, Mr. Penland hopes to compile a list of all persons in his territory who are unable, through poor sight, to read, even with the use of glasses. He is anxious to include in this list children as well as adults.

Cards for the listing of persons with defective vision are being circulated by the schools and churches. But, lest someone be overlooked, Mr. Penland has requested that any persons knowing of individuals handicapped by serious impairment of sight to notify him, listing the names, addresses and other information concerning such individuals.

In many instances, Mr. Penland said, persons suffering from blindness can be given corrective treatment. And in many other instances, he said, persons who are unable to be self-sustaining on account of their inability to see can be made self-supporting through vocational training.

Mr. Penland, himself blind, is a fine

Few Cases Set For May Term Of Civil Court This Time

The May term of civil court will convene here next Monday morning, with Judge John M. Oglesby presiding. The calendar for this term is much less than usual, with the largest case scheduled in the motion docket on Friday, May 8.   - Turner vs. Hampton, et al.
  - Hicks vs. Canton B. & L. Ass'n.

example of what a blind person can accomplish. He owns and operates the telephone system in Clay county, operating the switchboard in addition to supervising the company's business. In place of lights which are used as signals on the ordinary telephone switchboard, Mr. Penland has gongs, or bells, all tuned differently. He knows every bell on the board and, too, can recognize any of his subscribers by the sound of their voice over the wire.

He is also serving as County Red Cross Chairman, county chairman of Federal Housing Administration, county director for North Carolina League for Crippled Children, member of advisory board of E. R. A. teachers, and county chairman of North Carolina Conference for social service. He formerly served as treasurer of Clay county and represented his county in the state legislature.

Grandparents in Court With Star

Freddie Bartholomew and grandparents

Two of the most interested spectators to the legal battle waged in Los Angeles between his mother and aunt over custody of Freddie Bartholomew were the grandparents of the child star, shown accompanying him into court. Their English country home was Freddie's residence until his aunt, Miss Mylicent Bartholomew, brought him to United States two years ago.

Women To Be On Precinct Groups

At the precinct meetings on Saturday, May 9th, North Carolina Democrats will for the first time elect a woman on every precinct committee in the state.

This is the announcement made by J. Wallace Winborne, state chairman. Mr. Winborne says further: "The plan of organization, as amended at the last meeting of the State Executive committee, requires that every precinct meeting transact the following business:

Elect the precinct committee of five active Democrats, at least one of whom shall be a woman. The committee so elected shall immediately elect a chairman and vice-chairman, one of whom shall be a woman.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett, Jr., State vice-chairman, is working for a strong organization of women in the coming campaign.

Obituary

As our minds run back we can never forget the sad parting, with our friend, Mr. Ed Wells, who died at his home Monday night, April 22, on Pigeon, at the age of sixty-four years and five months. The Rev. T. G. Highfill conducted the services and was assisted by Rev. Houck. Mr. Wells was a well known citizen of the Bethel community and will be greatly missed. He was kind to every one and was ready to lend a helping hand when needed. He was a good man, neighbor, and friend. Mr. Wells was a man of business, possessing a splendid memory and a brilliant mind. But our loss was his gain. During the illness of Mr. Wells many of his friends visited him, and he talked of great faith and goodness. We hope to meet him in the great beyond, where there will be no sad parting, for sad it was for us all.
