Conservation Board Enjoys W. N. C. Meeting
The state department of Conservation and Development board ended their three-day fall session here last Tuesday afternoon, after taking a trip through the park, and through the Nantahala Gorge, to Warrior Mountain and Franklin.
The board gathered here Sunday afternoon, spent Monday making changes in the game laws as cited in this newspaper last week, and at noon were guests at luncheon at the Hotel Gordon, which some 60 business and civic leaders of Western North Carolina attended. Immediately after the luncheon the party left on the trip through the park and on into Bryson City for the night.
The members were warm in their praise of this section, as it was the first time that some had spent much time in the mountains, and especially in the fall.
The board heard plans for permitting Sunday hunting. They went on record urging the state highway department to construct a road on Mount Mitchell.
A request was made of the board that they close state refreshment stand at the Balsam fish hatchery, on the grounds, that the stand puts the state in competition with a privately owned place across the highway. The board spent more than an hour at the hatchery Tuesday afternoon, and made personal visit of the two stands involved. They did not disclose what action they would take before they left here.
Chas. E. Ray, Jr., acted as chairman of the local entertainment committee for the group, and was assisted by others of the community.

Boy Scout Hut Is Dedicated
The formal dedication of the $400 Boy Scout hut in the city park took place last Friday night, with Rev. J. G. Huggin, Jr., making the dedicatory address. The troop is sponsored by the Rotary Club.
