

Haywood To Have Part In Fighting Infantile Paralysis

Campaign To Be Launched Jan. 1st For Needed Funds

Half Of All Secured In County Will Be Used Among Afflicted In Haywood

Funds collected in this year's fight against infantile paralysis will be used by permanent local and national organizations to conduct a continuous battle against this "malignant death," it was explained today by Bill Prevost, chairman for Haywood county of the committee for the celebration of the President's birthday.

Half of all money collected will be retained in this county to be administered through a local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The other half will go to the National Foundation to be used for (1) research work for the prevention of the disease; (2) epidemic first aid; (3) public education; and (4) development of better methods for after-treatment.

The permanent organization will be formed in this county after the completion of the drive, which starts January 1 and concluded January 30 with the celebration of the birthday of President Roosevelt.

This year's campaign will be nationwide under the direction of a chairman in each of the 3,071 counties of the United States who will be assisted by community chairmen in each city, town and hamlet. The drive will take many forms, the purpose being to provide an opportunity for all to contribute. A ball, square dance and special movie will be held on or near the President's birthday, but during the month of the drive there also will be a march of dimes button campaign and a drive for the collection of dimes, nickels, and even pennies to swell the total.

The present organization, to be expanded after January 30, is the outgrowth of celebrations held since 1934, when the first series of President's Birthday Balls were held

"Sinkproof" Liner

Liner Ancon launched

The new $4,000,000 government liner Ancon, which will run between New York and the Canal Zone, is pictured sliding down the ways at Quincy, Mass., following launching ceremonies. The liner, 493 feet long, is hailed by her designers as one of the safest ships in the world and "virtually sinkproof."

throughout the nation on the birthday of President Roosevelt, January 30. As every person in the United States knows, President Roosevelt was stricken in manhood with this disease which is usually associated with childhood. His splendid fight against the malady and his rise since then to the highest position in the gift of the American people has been an inspiration for thousands who have been similarly afflicted.

Since he has been President, Mr. Roosevelt has dedicated his birthday to the battle against infantile paralysis, although he is not connected in any way with the organization administering funds.

A year ago, the organization of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was effected. It was incorporated, with a board of trustees composed of prominent men throughout the country. Prominent physicians have accepted positions on an advisory board. The national organization's research department faces a tremendous task, since the exact nature of infantile paralysis is not yet known.

The greater the success of the coming campaign, the more effective will be the future work of the national foundation, the county chairman pointed out.

"The campaign is non-partisan and non-sectarian," the chairman emphasized. "We want the help of everyone. Community chairmen will direct the campaign during the month and assist in providing for the success of the general celebration."

He quoted General Hugh S. Johnson, who is directing the drive in New York City, in emphasizing that there is no political side to the campaign. Infantile paralysis, General Johnson said, strikes both sides of any street. "The national fight," he said, "will survive long after present policies and political differences have been forgotten and many other men have passed through the presidency."

"Infantile Paralysis," General Johnson said, "is a terror by night, the arrow that flieth by day—the pestilence that walketh in darkness—the destruction that wasteth at noonday."

"It strikes without warning, and it strikes mostly children. Its death seems to be taking a short holiday just now, but that should tell nobody to any false sense of security."

"It may appear in your community tomorrow. It may reach into your family circle which today seems safe and happy—to will, swiftly, or to twist and contort, childish limbs or back, leaving them bent, wasted, withered, and useless through life."

"In the mind of everybody must be the question: 'What can I do?' 'How can I help?'"

One of the best things is to volunteer services to the drive in this county and its communities, the county chairman said. Each community is to have a chairman, and the drive will start soon after January 1. Details of the county and community plans will be announced as they are formed.

Sleeping On Glass Is Furniture Fad

HIGH POINT, N. C.—People who live in glass houses can sleep on glass beds. What is said to be the first glass bedroom suite in the United States has been manufactured in High Point and shipped to New York for display. It consists of eight pieces.

Manufacture of this furniture opens a new phase of the furniture industry. Two additional glass suites have been ordered by persons in Pennsylvania. The first, numbering seven pieces, consists of a bed, chiffonier, chair, vanity bench, vanity chair, and two night stands. The pieces, a combination of polished plate glass seven-eighths of an inch thick, and Carrara, will be called "Modern American" furniture. No piece of wood appears in any of it. Beds are manufactured either standard double size or as twin beds. The chair is made of a barrel-shaped piece of glass. The chiffonier stands 48 inches high and has sliding glass drawers.

Suites retail from $2,500 to $3,000, according to the number of pieces.

Can You Rough It? This Might Be A Job

The Indian Service wants "school marms" who can "rough it."

It says it is through with teachers who "had the necessary intelligence" but who lacked a rural background and a pioneer spirit.

A government announcement explained:

"Until recently, it would have been possible for a 23- or 24-year-old girl who had never lived anywhere except in a modern apartment building where she turned on the heat, pushed a button, and telephoned for groceries . . . to pass brilliantly a civil service examination for an Indian Service teaching job."

"Subsequently, she might find herself living in a cottage 60 miles from the nearest town and 40 miles from medical help via dirt roads; stoking a wood stove for heat, cleaning oil lamps and teaching a varied group of Indian children who understood little English and little of white ways, and whose main concern outside of school hours was helping their parents to get enough to eat from inadequate land."

Now examinations will take into consideration, not only the applicant's educational qualifications, but also her rural experience and understanding, initiative, ingenuity and fortitude.

"The Indian Service regards its education job not merely as teaching what is in books, but as helping young Indian people to understand their resources and the most modern methods of developing them," the Service explained. "In this type of work Indian office experience has shown that the teacher with rural background can be most effective."

O'Brien Honored

Davey O'Brien

Lil' Davey O'Brien, Texas Christian university All-American quarterback, is honored in New York with the Heisman trophy, presented to Davey as the "outstanding collegiate grid player of 1938." Davey flew in from Fort Worth, Tex., for the presentation.

GARDENS ON PARADE

SPOKANE, Wash.—Some go East and some go West. Foxtail flies, according to the hills of eastern Washington to the Atlantic coast; majestic pines from the mountains of Idaho are going to the Pacific coast.

The Foxtail flies, a common garden flower, but it grows well in western gardens, flowering from all sides of a tall straight stem to a height well over a man's head. Roots from this plant have been taken from the Montgomery Gardens at Colville, Wash., and planted on the grounds of the New York World's Fair, where they will bloom in "Gardens of Paradise."

For the San Francisco Fair, two majestic white pine trees were recently by the Potlatch Forest, Inc., in the Idaho mountains. They will guard the portals to the Idaho room in the Western States building at the World's Fair in San Francisco.

Fines Creek P. T. A. Sponsors Alumni Supper Mon. Night

The Fines Creek Parent Teacher Association sponsored an alumni supper for the young people of the community on Monday night at the school building.

It was voted to make the affair an annual event. The following officers were elected: President, Mabel Clark; vice president, Frank Kirkpatrick; treasurer and secretary, Pearl James.

A representative from each class graduating from the school, beginning with 1929 was chosen to work with the officers, as follows: 1929 Anna Lou Rathbone; 1930, Mrs. Ben Plennings; 1931, Bonnie Duckett; 1932, Mildred Rogers and Glenn Noland; 1933, Charles Duckett; 1934, Mrs. Lucy Ferguson; 1935, Eddie Walker; 1936, Frances James; 1937, Geraldine Rogers; 1938, Margaret Greene, and 1939, Billie McCrary.

The affair opened with assembly singing, followed by a welcome from David Rogers, to which Mabel Clark responded. Fred L. Safford addressed the group. The latter part of the evening was spent in playing games.

On Rounds With Circulation Man

Tobacco sales and tobacco prices continue as all absorbing topics, the Circulator has found this week. Most of the Haywood county tobacco went to Asheville, naturally, but several local raisers went to Greenville and Monticello with theirs.

And are claiming they got better prices. And have the checks to back up their claims. Which should be pretty good evidence.

The Circulator was privileged to shake hands during the Christmas holidays with one of the personages responsible for the excellent showing Wake Forest college is making in the basketball world—Rayd Owen, of Canton. But Rayd had little to say about his prowess at the cage game, preferring to talk about his class work. He is studying medicine.
