The Sunday School Lesson

CHRISTIAN MOTIVES FOR ABSTINENCE

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
 (The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 27 is Luke 1:13-16; 2:40; 4:4; 6:21, 25, 43:45, the Golden Text being Rom. 14:17, "For the Kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.")

TWO PREVIOUS lessons, telling of the birth of John the Baptist and Jesus, have prepared us for the lesson of today. This lesson sets forth the Christian motives for abstinence from intoxicating liquors for International Temperance Sunday.

You remember that when the angel announced to Zacharias, the priest, that he would have a son, the angel said: "And thou shalt have joy and gladness, and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and he shall drink no wine nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb."

Few parents in the world have this wonderful assurance that their sons will grow up to be good men and women, giving them only joy and happiness. They can only trust that with love and wise upbringing they will so develop. Too many raise their children only to have them grow away from the high standards set by the parents. Some parents, too, sorrow for their children's wrong doing when the young people only follow the example set them by said parents.

You remember, too, that the angel told Mary, "thou shalt bring forth a son and shalt call His name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest."

Here were two mothers who did not have to worry about their sons—at least about their conduct. Each "turned many of the children of Israel to the Lord, their God," as was prophesied about John, and each suffered martyrdom.

John Grows Strong
 We know little of John's childhood and growth into manhood. At the end of the first chapter of Luke, he says of John, "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel."

Of Jesus it was said: "And the child grew, and waxed strong, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him." Jesus developed like ordinary boys, learned to walk and to talk, to notice things, to ask questions. He must have been a great joy to his gentle mother as He grew in body and in spirit. What a companion He must have been to her.

Each child grew up in a pious family with parents who not only obeyed earthly laws, but also lived the life of the spirit. How much better chance have modern children who live in Christian homes, with parents who obey God's laws, to grow up into strong, earnest characters, than those who have no such privileges. That they do not always so grow and develop is one of the sad things of life.

After Jesus' baptism by John He was tempted by Satan who took Him into the wilderness for 40 days, during which time He ate nothing, and was hungry. Then Satan said, "If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread."

But Jesus answered the tempter, "It is written that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Bread nourishes the body. We cannot live without food and water, but what poor lives we live if we do not have something more than nourishment for our bodies, if we do not have food for our spirits, too.

Later Jesus was teaching and healing the people, and as they crowded about Him he said to them—the poor, hungry and sad—"Blessed are ye that hunger now; for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now; for ye shall laugh."

Sorrow does not last. The hungry are usually fed, even bodily food; and the grief passes. Those who have hungered often times are thereafter more sympathetic with others and help those poorer than themselves. Those who have wept know how to sympathize with others in their grief, and learn to be happy again.

All who grow "strong in spirit," refusing to be tempted into unworthy ways of living, reap the reward in physical well-being and—which is more important in strong character and spiritual health.

"Each tree is known by its fruit," said Jesus. "For there is no good tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit; nor again a corrupt tree that bringeth forth good fruit. The good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth that which is evil; for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh."

On this day dedicated to world temperance, let us consider the words of our Golden Text: "For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit." Let us dedicate ourselves to this joy and peace.

cannot fool him or frighten him. Naturally, therefore, the dictators desire that the American people repudiate Roosevelt at the polls, and place a Chamberlain in his chair—one that will play ball with the dictators.

In this grave, international crisis, and in this great and unprecedented national emergency, the American people cannot afford to weaken or divide the national influence or its fighting forces, by defeating at the polls the one man in America most feared and hated by the dictators; the man who fostered and effected the new and enlarged Monroe Doctrine; the man that united in a friendly compact all the republics of the Western Hemisphere, and the most admired and trusted by them.

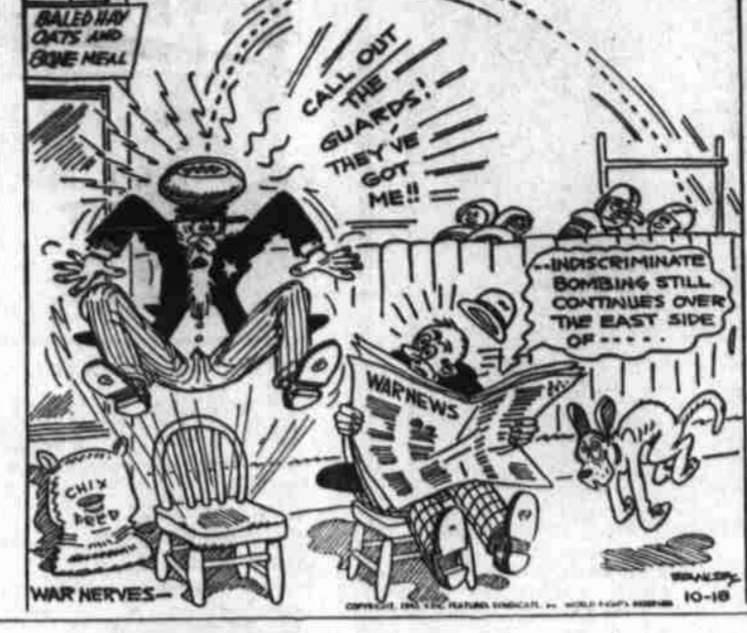

Yes, the one man—that has aroused the American people to the point of passing a Peace-time Conscription Bill and appropriating $10,000,000,000 to defend themselves against dictator aggression, and despite the opposition of Mr. Wilkie's party as a party.

Mr. Roosevelt has become so identified with our National Defense program and our Foreign Policy, that a repudiation of him at the polls would encourage and embolden the dictators into the mad belief that the American people approved of them and their dirty deeds, and disapproved of Mr. Roosevelt and his Foreign Policy. That erroneous belief would not only prove prejudicial to the prestige and best interest of America, but add fuel and flame to the wild ambition and desire of Hitler to conquer the whole world, including America.

Therefore, the American people should re-elect Mr. Roosevelt, not only because he has had a wider experience in government and a better grasp of national affairs and world problems than Mr. Wilkie, but because we must let the
