all others must be approved by Congress, and Congress does override the President in many instances. The President, however, becomes a dictator only when he disrupts or seizes the judiciary and Congress and when he becomes senile. If a dictator would be of little consequence or consolation, we have and never will have, in the light of history, it is silly to ascribe such dictatorial powers to any Chief Executive, and it is unfair to impute dictatorial powers to our present President, because he offers to serve the people for a third term in a grave international crisis—of which has never before been any former President. It is more the fault of Mr. Roosevelt that he exercised dictatorial powers since 1933, to fight the economic world revolution and the chaos, than it is the fault of the President that he is exercising dictatorial powers to fight the chaos of Europe.

anyone believe that George Washington would have declined a third term, if his country was at that time threatened by war on two sides? Can America be today? Can a prudent reader of history, or Thomas Jefferson refusing to serve a second term under such fateful circumstances?

all know that these two able statesmen declined to serve a third term, because there was no national or international emergency, in their opinion, which would justify a third term for either. This was especially so in the case of Washington, as the Infant Republic was fortunate in having, as its first successors, a wealth of honest, experienced, patriotic and public spirited statesmen to choose from—such as the Adamses, the Madisons, the Monroes and the likes.

what have we to choose today—when it is conceded by all that the nation is facing its gravest crisis in its history—choice between a third term for a distinguished, experienced and seasoned first class statesman, on the one hand, and a young, inexperienced and untried attorney who has been engaged in lobbying and serving the mammoth utility holding company for the past 10 years. The young man is obviously ignorant of world affairs, and the old man Foreign Policy. He is badly inexperienced and untried with the all important machinery of government and government machinery, because he has been too busy with his own chosen field of earning fees for himself and his big dividends for his stockholders, by maintaining high utility rates and killing all competition—to offer himself and his talents to his nation, counsellor of his state or his nation, under a Presidential election began to turn on his ears.

Willkie is young and very energetic, and can well afford to manage a huge government in the only practical way, through the hard school of experience. Let Mr. Roosevelt get himself elected and serve his countrymen, as a state legislator, a Congressman, a U. S. Senator and a Governor. Then, and not before, he will be experienced and seasoned enough to know how to handle and marshal the forces of a great government and make quick and wise decisions, effecting the life and well-being of over one hundred and thirty million Americans.

County Home Clubs Will Stage Achievement Day

Home demonstrations clubs in Haywood County will hold their Achievement Day on Thursday, the 7th, at 11 o'clock in the room of the court house. Ruth Current, state home demonstration agent, will be the special speaker. Members of the clubs are invited to bring individual exhibits of their work made during the past year, such as dresses, rugs, basket-wool trays, knitted and crocheted articles, also flowers, preserves and other canned foods.

HEE-HAW GETS A HEAP OF HOWDY

Story 68

Hee-Haw got to Mr. Man's house late in the night and everybody was asleep. He didn't make a bit of noise, but crept up right easy and stopped away down the lane so he wouldn't wake Rover Dog. It wasn't very comfortable sleeping in the harness and hitched to the wagon, but it was the best he could do and so he kept wiggling around until he got comfortable enough to sleep. It was good big day when he woke, and so he got up and went on to the house. Not even Rover Dog was up and everything was quiet as a mouse till Hee-Haw raised his voice and turned loose that morning call that Mr. Man had heard for so many years.

And now you may believe that it wasn't quiet around there any longer. Do you remember that night when Blackie ran over Uncle Joe's wheelbarrow, waking up everybody on the place and how they made such a noise? Well, that was what you children call "playing like," beside the racket that Mr. Man's animals could make. Of course, it woke Rover Dog and Mrs. Rover Dog, and if there was anybody a mile of the place that did not hear those dogs howl, it was because they were deaf. And such cackling as the chickens did! And the guineas and the turkey gobblers and the geese made noise that was almost loud enough to be heard at Blackie's house. It really did wake Jay Bird and it wasn't long before he was over there to see the fun. And it really was fun. The noise had just started good when Mr. Man's door flew open and he stuck his head out to see if he had just dreamed that Hee-Haw had called him. Not a bit of a dream, there was his donkey! He jumped back for his clothes and Mrs. Man will tell you that he never got into them in twice the time before. Out he ran to Hee-Haw and, would you believe it? He threw his arms around his neck and patted him on the head just as if he had been a baby. And Hee-Haw just stood there with his head hanging down like he was most tired to death, and his big ears drooping over his eyes so Mr. Man couldn't see him laughing. It did all seem good enough to laugh about, for by the time Mr. Man got his arms around Hee-Haw's neck, all the chickens and animals had found out what it was all about, and here came Mrs. Moo Cow and her calf, the turkeys, pigs, geese and everything about the lot, and they made the greatest to do over Hee-Haw that any donkey ever saw. ## Here Are Just 20 Of The Many Accomplishments Of The Democratic Party For The Past Seven Years

1. Given the Government of the United States back to the people of the United States.
2. Established Social Security accounts for 50,000,000 men and women, paid benefits to 600,000, and is helping to protect 28,000,000 with unemployment compensation.
3. Doubled farm income, saved millions of farmers from bankruptcy so they could retain their homes and helped thousands of tenant farmers to buy their own farms. Stabilized farm prices so that the farmer has some assurance as to his future income.
4. Cut unemployment in half and preserved the skills and morale of unemployed through W. P. A. and P. W. A.
5. Raised the national income 70 percent, from $40,000,000,000 in 1932 to $68,000,000,000 in 1939. Increased the index of industrial production from 64 in 1932 to 105 in 1940—or higher than normal before the depression. Increased dividends of corporations by 55 percent from $2,700,000,000 in 1932 to $4,250,000,000 in 1939.
6. Conserved America's jobless young men and America's natural resources through the Civilian Conservation Corps.
7. Launched the greatest program of defensive armament in the history of the world.
8. Strengthened the defense of our Western Hemisphere by the Good Neighbor policy in South America and by reciprocal trade treaties.
9. Established a Joint Defense Board with Canada.
10. Protected labor's right of collective bargaining, with an increase of wages of 62 percent.
11. Placed a ceiling over hours and a floor under wages to protect non-unionized and unskilled workers from exploitation.
12. Compelled giant utility holding companies to reorganize so that they could be properly regulated and charge lower rates.
13. Helped home owners by refinancing a million mortgages, helped another half-million families to build or finance homes through the Federal Housing Administration. Launched a quarter-billion dollar program for slum clearance and low-priced housing.
14. Established conscription of men (and of industrial plants, if they refuse to co-operate).
15. Doubled the effectiveness of the navy by obtaining naval bases from Great Britain.
16. Saved the Central States from becoming dust bowls by flood control, reforestation and scientific farming.
17. Extended to hundreds of thousands of families the benefits of electricity through rural electrification. Built power plants with an ultimate capacity of 2,000,000,000 kilowatts and storage dams of a capacity of 11 trillion (11,000,000,000,000) gallons.
18. Preserved our banking system through insurance of bank deposits.
19. Made private investments safer through the Securities and Exchange Commission.
20. Helped thousands of young men and women to complete their education through National Youth Administration.
