Mountain Joe ...

I have lived through 15 presidential elections. I don't remember all of them, but in all that time, every presidential candidate assumed the attitude that if he were not elected the country would go to the dogs. The 1940 campaign has been no different. Never once has the prediction come true. It takes lots more than one man to send a nation like America to the dogs, and so I've learned during my 60 odd years, to brush aside the sugar coating of political campaign speeches and promises and get down to the inside.

These Burgin Boys are not politicians - they have no sugar coating - they're plain spoken and give you every advantage. I suggest you see their winter stock.
