

Vocational Boys Go For Purebred Pigs

The Rocky Mountain National chapter Future Farmers of America is concentrating on bettering this community. The chapter bought a purebred Poland China gilt from the University of Tennessee, but at the time the pigs were from the line of Blue Boy it was found not to use him. A mature board was from Forest Messer, and from these groups give some exceptionally fine. The board, Eureka Banlin, is in the National Poland

China Record Association while the sows are registered with the American Poland China Record Association. This will entitle the offspring to be registered with both societies, and will give some blood lines well worth the time and trouble of the hog grower. Each of the ten members of the chapter has an agreement whereby he is to let a second member of the organization have a sow pig, the second member makes the same agreement when his pig "comes in," thereby establishing purebred hogs on all the farms from which boys come into the various classes in agriculture. The board is available to the general community, and is being kept by Elmer Hendrix, Allen's Creek.

Fines Creek Boy Makes Good On Tobacco

BOYD MESSER IN HIS TOBACCO PROJECT

By Boyd Messer.
I have always lived on a high school in the fall. I have always lived on a farm and had an ambition to agriculture. Vocational agriculture gives training for many careers but especially for farm-land. Present, I am a member of the vocational class.

For my first year I completed four shop projects in the school shop and one construction project at home. For my second year projects, I took one-half acre of tobacco, one beef heifer, and one-half acre of corn. On these projects, I made $180.50. I completed five projects in the first two years. I was encouraged very much by the results of my second year projects. The farm being devoted to crops and livestock, I took part livestock and part crop projects.

For my third year of project work, I took one-half acre of tobacco, one beef heifer, one baby beef, one acre corn, one-half acre spinach, and made a profit of $245.00.

I have enjoyed being an active member of the F. F. A. and plan to stay enrolled for the three years after graduation. This year, we have adopted a plan of rotation and strip cropping which we plan to follow as a farm improvement practice.

Fines Creek Boy Raises Hogs

WILLARD HOLDER AND HIS HOG PROJECT

By Willard Holder.
I am nineteen years old and a high school. I have always lived on the farm, but find that there are new lessons to learn about farming. I am a member of the vocational agriculture class.

My first year I took as my project one-half acre of tobacco and one calf for breeding purpose, which I made $120 and kept for a second year's project. During my first year I completed four shop projects in the school shop and one construction project at home. For my second year projects, I took one-half acre of tobacco, one beef heifer, and one-half acre of corn. On these projects, I made $180.50. I completed five projects in the first two years. I was encouraged very much by the results of my second year projects. The farm being devoted to crops and livestock, I took part livestock and part crop projects.

left; $80 for the tobacco; $30 for my one-half acre of corn. My net profit on these projects was $135. My second year's projects were one sow and litter, one dairy heifer, one acre of tobacco and one acre of corn. I received a profit of $30 for my pigs, $25 for the heifer, $76.80 for the tobacco, $40 for acre of corn, grown where crimson clover had been turned under. My net profit for that year was $171.

My third year's projects were: one-half acre of corn, one acre of tobacco, brood sow and litter of pigs. For my corn I received $23.40; for my tobacco $154.80; for the pigs $40.00, making a net profit of $218.00. For my fourth year, I plan to have two acres of corn, one of tobacco, and continue my hog project. I shall finish high school this spring and then I am going to try to buy a farm of my own where I can farm in a profitable way.
