Senator Bailey Against Strikes And Sit-Downs

Senator Josiah W. Bailey is against strikes and sit-downs. He branded them as dangerous in that they will defeat all our plans for defense work. He made these assertions in a formal statement this week, when he said in part:

"The question now is whether this Government is strong enough to see to it that agitators, communists and German agents shall not obstruct the necessary program of production. I believe that it is.

"We cannot delay in such a matter. If the President needs further legislation, all he has to do is to ask for it. Order must be maintained.

"We need now the work of every worker, and the right of any worker to work must be protected, and that without paying for the privilege.

"If there are grievances, let them be referred to Government arbitration, but in the meantime the work must go on. In all controversies between workers and employers, the Government must now be umpire; its decisions must be prompt and effectual.

"I am confidently expecting adequate action by the President upon his return from a vacation which he needed.

"I am for whatever measures may be necessary to eliminate all possibility of strikes or sit-downs against the security of the people of the United States; and I am for prompt action.

"Delay is not only dangerous, it amounts to defeat of all our plans."
