Flowers Grown Profusely Here

Through both individual and organization activities this community has gained quite a reputation as a flower center during the past few years.

Outstanding among the individual growers are W. T. Shelton, of Waynesville, and J. B. Ivey, of Lake Junaluska and Charlotte. Both men have specialized in dahlias and gladioli and their gardens are famous throughout the state.

During the last few years Mr. Shelton has extended his interest to other flowers and his delphinium, roses and lilies have rivaled the dahlias in the attention shown by hundreds of visitors who inspect his gardens annually.

Mr. Shelton has also originated a number of new dahlias and enjoys planting and experimenting with seeds.

Mr. Ivey has exhibited his flowers at the National Flower Show in Madison Square Garden, New York City, and is well known for the high grade and exceptional quality of his flowers.

He has been greatly interested in the flower shows staged by the women's groups here and for years has generously donated the grand prize offered annually in the Woman's Club summer show.

Both Mr. Shelton and Mr. Ivey take an active part in the flower shows, and no exhibit is felt to be complete without entries from both gardens.

For more than twenty-five years the Woman's Club has staged a late summer flower show featuring dahlias and gladioli. For around fifteen years, prior to its merging with the Woman's Club, the Community Club staged an early spring show featuring the popular and old-fashioned perennials which grow so well in this section.

Keen interest has developed in the past twenty years in the growing of flowers in this section and the gardens and shows attract visitors from all over this section of the state and makes this a good community in which to live.
