Cotton Sandwich Diet For Boy Who Swallowed Pin

PHILADELPHIA—A cotton sandwich was ordered for breakfast today for five-year-old Joseph Mudd and physicians couldn't say when his diet would be changed.

The child was brought to Hahnemann Hospital after he swallowed a two and a half inch long corkscrew pin. The sandwich, made with two slices of bread, buttered and spread with jelly, have absorbent cotton for a filler.

Doctors said they hoped it would form a protective mass about the pin and keep it from piercing the intestines.

Specialists Give Demonstrations On Tobacco Grading

L. T. Weeks, State Extension specialist, and W. L. Bradsher, of the U. S. Agricultural Marketing Service will be in the county assisting in the grading of tobacco, according to Wayne Corpening, county farm agent.

Four meetings are to be arranged with the farmers in the county on the two days, 20th and 21st, that the specialists will be here, for the farmers to view the demonstrations of grading.

The places and hours of these four meetings will be announced at a later date.

The sale of tobacco grown this year in the county will depend to a large extent on how it is handled according to the farm agents, who are urging the farmers to attend these meetings and get first hand information about grading.

7,478 Births In State For Sept.

September's 7,478 North Carolina births, as compared with 7,014 during the corresponding month last year, brought the total for the first nine months of 1941 to 64,101. This shows an increase of 3,458 over the 60,643 reported through September, 1940, according to figures compiled by the State Board of Health's division of Vital Statistics, of which Dr. R. T. Stimpson is the director. The rate for no single month during the current year has fallen below 20.4. The September rate was 25.1.

North Carolina deaths for the first nine months of 1941 totaled 24,404, which was 103 in excess of those reported for the corresponding period of 1940, and of the total for this year, through September 3,893, or 16 per cent, were infants under a year old. During the corresponding period last year infant deaths in North Carolina totaled 3,471, giving 1941, so far, an excess of 422 over 1940.

There was a substantial decrease, however, in the number of maternal deaths—those who died in childbirth or as the result of pregnancy. Through September, this year, there had been 291 such deaths reported in the state, as compared with 351 last year, a decrease of 60. But there has been a marked increase in the number of children under two years of age dying as the result of diarrhea and enteritis. This year's reported total, so far, is 505, as compared with 375 last year, an increase of 130.
