

A Week Of The War

The President established a War Production Board headed by Donald M. Nelson, former mail-order executive and more recently executive director of SPAB and deputy director of the War Relocation Authority. The President directed Mr. Nelson to "exercise general direction over the war production and production program," supervise the OPM and issue production and procurement directions when necessary to all other government agencies. The President and Mr. Nelson's decision shall be final. Vice President Wallace and members of the SPAB now appointed, were made members of the War Production Board.

A letter to OPM Directors, Messrs. Hillman and other production officials, Mr. Nelson said "we must enlarge all our production activities... all our facilities... must produce 24 hours a day, 168 hours a week." OPM Director Hillman, speaking in Washington, said the nation's force of workers in war industries must be tripled, more women must be trained and brought into the labor force to take the place of men going into the armed services. He asked employers not to turn away war industries employees in plants turning out secret weapons.

Director Odum of the OPM production division said he has been prepared to set aside one per cent of all available materials to assist small manufacturers in keeping their plants operating until they can be converted for war use. He said the nation's production facilities—all of the "hidden away in thousands of towns and villages"—must be joined in the total war effort. He asked all mayors to have every manufacturer in their cities registered at the nearest OPM production division field office to "go after war contracts every ounce of ingenuity and every penny they possess."

then only at OPA-established prices. OPA issued a schedule of prices for "retreadable" tire carcasses and "retread" and forecast a ceiling over all used tires "in the very near future." Federal Loan Administrator Jones announced plans to increase synthetic rubber production capacity to 400,000 tons by pooling of resources and skills of the rubber and oil industries if priorities can be obtained on steel needed to erect plants. OPA Administrator Henderson said tire rationing would probably not be affected because of increasing military needs for rubber.

AGRICULTURE
Agriculture Secretary Wickard said goals have been revised to call for the greatest agricultural production in U. S. history, with particular emphasis on the production of oil-bearing crops such as peanuts and soybeans. The corn goal was stepped up by five million acres in order that there would be feed supplies to continue expansion of meat, dairy and poultry production. Dry edible bean and dry pea production increase were called for. An additional five million bushels of rice was asked and provision made for an increase over 1941 of more than 18 million cases of canned fruits and vegetables.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE
The OCD announced 3,516,600 volunteers have enrolled in the various civilian defense services, including 1,423,755 assigned to training or duty in the protective services. The office also announced a Victory Garden Program under which all families in any community can jointly till community gardens, use the produce themselves and give the surplus to schools and institutions. Surgeon General Parran told the U. S. conference of mayors in Washington "the enemy has planned and in my opinion will use bacteriological warfare whenever possible." He asked the mayors to begin at once to take every possible precaution.
