

On The Tar Heel Front IN WASHINGTON

By Robert A. Erwin and Frances McKusick

Washington—The independent businessmen won two important decisions in Washington last week which should make the "little fellow" heave a deep sigh of relief, roll up his shirt sleeves and settle down to the prospect of "back to normal" or better business. As usual, members of the North Carolina congressional delegation were not caught napping over the plight of the little businessman, and partially because of their efforts, at least, things have been done.

One of these victories directly affects only one type of business; the meat packer who sells only within his state. However, the final passage of the bill allowing Federal inspection for intra-state selling meat packers indirectly aids the farmer, the employees at the meat packing establishments, and Uncle Sam.

The other victory for small business lies in the amendment to the "Back door Trucking" 75 per cent of capacity return load before they left the home plant, if their destination was more than 15 miles away.

Last week North Carolina congressmen frantically protested to the War Production Board against this order, which was to be effective June 1. They explained its enforcement would result in an epidemic of bankruptcies of small manufacturers throughout the state, or at best, the closing of their doors. It took them only a day to persuade the WPB that the effective date of the order should be deferred until July 1, giving the officials in that agency an opportunity to amend the order.

On Thursday of last week, John C. Baskerville, Secretary of the Lenoir Chamber of Commerce and former newspaperman, came back from the Office of Defense Transportation with a happy smile and the announcement that the ODT had assured him the order would be definitely amended to allow the continuance of trucking for the small manufacturer. Mr. Baskerville believes some zoning plan will be enforced, extending the mileage in which a truck may travel without the "return load regulation" of from 50 to 100 miles.

Mr. Baskerville was particularly concerned about this order, and therefore correspondingly pleased with promises of amendment because this mandate constituted a serious threat to Lenoir furniture interests. Because of the lack of convenient rail facilities, the Lenoir furniture and hardware manufacturers have their wood brought in from the forests, from distances more than 15 miles away, by truck.

Senator Josiah W. Bailey was assured by Price Administrator Leon Henderson that tobacco farmers who carry their crops to market in a trailer will be allowed supplementary gasoline rations for that purpose.

And there is still more good news for the farmers. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has assured North Carolina representatives in congress that the much-needed parity checks will be forthcoming within the next two weeks.

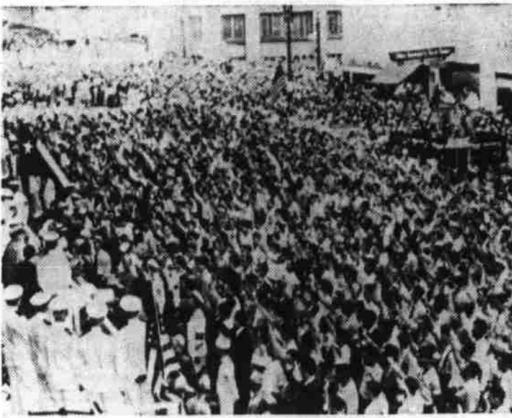

Reason for the delays this year are: the new requirement of clearance through Nashville, Tenn.; the combining of parity and soil conservation payments into one check; and the confusion resulting from the movement of part of the agency from Washington to other sections of the country.

The AAA is as sorry about the delay as anyone, and it has ordered its field offices to work overtime if necessary to get the applications through. Right now, payment vouchers are being cleared at the rate of 10,000 a week in North Carolina. About 22,000 vouchers remain for final approval.

Some folks are still wondering why Richard Tilman Fountain, the Rocky Mount rambler, tackled Senator Josiah William Bailey in his recent primary. Other than wanting to be senator, some of our informants tell us that Fountain was good and sore at Governor J. Melville Broughton.

So the story goes, Fountain was

To Avenge Loss of 1,000 Men

Here are some of the 1,000 stalwart sons of Texas, swearing to avenge the 1,000 men who were lost with the U. S. cruiser Houston in the battle of Java, as they turned out for a mass induction ceremony in Houston, Texas. President Roosevelt sent a personal message to be read before the volunteers. Rear Adm. William Alexander Glassford, commander of American naval forces in the Java action took charge of the ceremony and may be seen with other officers on the platform on the left.

an ardent Broughton supporter during the 1940 Governorship primary, and after Broughton had won, he anticipated collaboration with the governor and called on him in Raleigh. Broughton didn't want to see Fountain and gave him the run around, so our sources say, finally ducking out and leaving Fountain still waiting.

Fountain didn't like this treatment, and at the Winston-Salem Young Democratic convention last year, the governor suggested the senator should be unopposed this year. Therefore, Fountain decided to trouble Bailey and Broughton at the same time and did so forthwith.

Representative Zebulon Weaver, of Asheville, went home for the May 30 primary, although he had no Democratic opposition. In the general election, however, there will be a Republican candidate, and Mr. Weaver will have lost three Democratic counties, Rutherford, Polk and McDowell, to the new Eleventh District as a result of the redistricting.

The congressman has represented his district, the new Twelfth, since 1917, except for the two year gap, 1929-1931, when he was a victim of the Republican landslide. During his tenure, he has gradually increased the Democratic majorities in the district. It will be interesting to see what affect the loss of Rutherford, Polk and McDowell will have in the general election.

Both Mr. Weaver and his secretary, Mrs. Sarah Alley Smithson, of Asheville, formerly of Waynesville, voted in the recent primary.

ing and will continue to mount in order to wage a war that we must win. This is a matter beyond our control. Although local governments cannot absorb this increase in federal taxes with a proportionate reduction of their taxes and continue to function on a sound financial basis, they can provide some relief to the most of their taxpayers by enforcing payment of accumulated delinquent taxes and preventing further such accumulation in the future.

Beaverdam Club Makes Study of Home Nursing

The Beaverdam home demonstration club met with Mrs. Roy Robinson June 2nd with 19 members present.

Mrs. James Smith was welcomed into the club. Each member answered roll call by telling how many vegetables were growing in her garden. All who had as many as eleven were presented "Victory Garden" posters. One woman had 25.

The home agent gave a demonstration on "Home Care of the Sick." The things to do and not to do were stressed. She displayed the different articles each home medicine closet should contain. The list was simple, yet sufficient for home nursing. The fact was brought out that a small wooden box could be converted into a medicine closet by adding shelves, a door and painting. Too, long empty cheese boxes used to make one, or out of light lumber.

During recreation the hostess assisted by her mother served delicious refreshments. Mrs. Frank Cane won the prize in the contest. The club will meet with Mrs. Sam Robinson in July.

Mrs. John Cagle, who has been ill, is some better.

The Epworth League of Elizabeth Chapel will begin at the church Sunday night. All young people are asked to attend.

More prisoners are recaptured each year than escape from North Carolina prison system.

Fines Creek News

Mrs. D. N. Rathbone.

The second sugar rationing canning last week gave the people much concern as to how much would be allowed and when they learned just how it was they were greatly pleased with the outcome.

Fines Creek has been blessed with a wonderful growing season so far this year. Although bacco plants are very scarce due to the dry weather back in the spring, which resulted in a shortage.

Mrs. James Clark and daughter Margie Ann, have returned to the Haywood County Hospital.

Miss Lorena McCrary, who is at Blanton's Business College, home for the week-end. She is as her guest a classmate, Nancy Barnes, formerly of Blanton.

Mark Rathbone, now serving the army in Virginia, spent days here visiting his sisters, Lenn Rathbone and Mrs. W. W. Ledford.

Mrs. Manford Fisher and children have joined Mr. Fisher at Newport News after an extended visit here with her parents, and Mrs. J. B. Green.

First woman prison superintendent in North Carolina history, Mrs. C. D. Strickland, who was the head of woman's prison, died, this year.
