Wood Will Take Place Of Coal And Oil As Fuel

In view of the present transportation shortage, the government is suggesting that farmers and people in small towns use wood as fuel instead of coal and oil, where feasible.

R. W. Graeber, extension forester of N. C. State College, says that the use of wood fuel has great possibilities in North Carolina for the heating of homes, heating schools and in smaller industries where equipment can be readily changed from coal-burning to wood-burning.

The forester said a ton of dry wood is equal in heat units to about a half ton of soft coal. Different kinds of wood vary in weight from about 1 1/2 to more than 2 tons per cord.

"The maximum heating results are secured from well-seasoned or thoroughly air-dried wood," Graeber said. "Such wood will then contain about 15 to 20 percent moisture by total weight. Fuel wood requires from six months to a year to season properly. If it is intended for next winter's consumption, the wood should be cut not later than this summer."

The extension worker said that farmers, in providing themselves with fuel for their winter use, can place their woodlands in good growing condition at the same time. "Utilize the poorer species," he suggested; "the dead, crooked, defective and heavy-limbed trees not suitable for commercial use. This thinning out process will give the good trees a better chance to grow into saw timber size."

Farmers who have stacks of wood alongside the road should find a ready market for surplus fuel, "and this is one time that surpluses will mean extra profit for the farmer," Graeber declared.

always well worth reading, with its stories, poems and homely philosophy. One of his recent stories—likely as not it originated in John's bright mind—was about two mountaineers in the remote coves of our state. One knew the war was going on and the other didn't. "Ef we're a-fightin'," the uninitiated one inquired to know, "what air we a-fightin' about?"

"A woman, of course," returned the other. "All fights air about wimmen."

"Whut kind uv a woman?" pursued his questioner.

"I don't rightly know," confessed his informant. "All I know is that her name air Pearl Harbor."

Trade at Home

Help Win The WAR...

Mr. and Mrs. Haywood—

THERE HAS always been close connection between war and the home. Both members of the animal and human kingdom fight to protect the home. Certainly, there is no place in the world just like "home, sweet home"—where our loved ones are.

What makes our homes possible? Isn't it love, work, and cooperation? And don't our homes and our business establishments make up our Home Town?.. Of course they do.

Every one who loves his home will also like his Home Town. If we didn't, we would move elsewhere. To make your Home Town a better place in which to live and work, your dollars spent at home will do a great deal. They will help employ more people, help support schools and churches, help pay more taxes and countless other things, while dollars spent away from home seldom ever return here to stay and work.

During this war, many business establishments are feeling the effects of it. Let's everybody resolve to help ourselves and our Home Town by TRADING AT HOME, at least for the duration.

There are many, many advantages and you save in many ways. You SAVE TIME, MONEY AND TIRES! And you are helping to build up Your Home Town and not some mail order house or some other town at the expense of your own! Think it over, won't you?

Iron Duff News

The Iron Duff home demonstration club met June 2 with Mrs. Grover Hogan, with several members present. Several reports were given by the project leaders, on poultry, gardening, clothing, etc. Victory garden posters were awarded to the club members having as many as twelve different vegetables in their gardens. Glad to say our club was 100 per cent victory gardeners.

Miss Smith gave an unusually interesting and helpful talk on "Home Care of the Sick." She displayed the articles each home medicine chest should contain. Other remedies and helpful suggestions were offered by the club members. She stressed the point that since doctors and nurses will be scarcer than ever, we should know how to do all the simple things at home. Suggestions were also made on feeding the sick and how the meals should be served. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The July meeting will be held with Mrs. Roy B. Medford.
