No More Doctors To Be Drafted In State In 1942

There are to be no more doctors drafted into the service in 1942 in North Carolina, it was learned here this week from Dr. R. McCracken, member of state committee for procurement and assignment of physicians. Dr. McCracken is in charge of all the area west of Burlington county and his duty is to see that necessary medical service is available in the territory.

Dr. McCracken pointed out the ruling applying to North Carolina was due to the fact that many of the doctors in the state have volunteered their services and the quota from the state has been reached, without further drafting.
