More Interest Should Be Shown In Local Hospital

 precedence over the private interests of the people working in it, including the doctors, and also over the economic interest of the hospital itself. As a community institution provided by public funds it expects and is expected to serve the needy without recompense. At the same time, as a convenient and sometimes necessary substitute for expects to be paid, and properly the home in case of sickness, it paid, by those who choose to make use of it. In short, it sells service when it can to patients who are willing and able to pay, and gives services, at county expense, to those who cannot pay.
 "The hospital is expected to take the lead in community health and welfare and stand as a bulwark against the severe and frightening diseases such as pneumonia, cerebral hemorrhage, cardiac conditions and many which are remote and difficult to diagnose as well as against all sorts of industrial accidents and disasters as exemplified by the dreadful explosion which occurred here several years ago.

 The people of the community look to the hospital to bring their children into the world, to guard their health by every means that science affords, in fact to perform every service relating to the care of their physical selves except burying them when they die.
 "The individual expects all the services of a good hotel including a personal maid or valet. And to many, a sojourn in a hospital is an escape from all troubles and responsibilities.
 "Conformation to rules and regulations in a community hospital is a matter of educating the people we serve to the hospital routine and we have come a long way on that very difficult road in the past few months.
 "From the community, the hospital has every right to expect the fullest support. It has a right to expect enough civic interest and pride on the part of the thinking people of the community to provide a hospital board willing and able to make a progressive, intelligent plan for the hospital, and carry it out.
 "The community is growing in population and industry. It has been predicted that more and more industries will be looking toward this section for location and they will demand better service than our present setup will be able to provide.
 "Our tourist population and summer colony is growing every year. We have had some of them as more or less critical and dissatisfied patients every summer.
 We must anticipate the growing demands that this progress will inevitably make on our hospital.
 The town through the Chamber of Commerce and its civic clubs is planning unlimited progress. The county through its 4-H Clubs, farm programs, rural electrification, etc., is keeping right in step.
 My appeal to the public is to "get behind" the hospital and carry it along in whatever plans for progress and community welfare you may have.
 "If and when you are asked to serve on the hospital board or do any work at all connected with it, consider it as a duty and a privilege to have a part in making your hospital something to be proud of and thus lift it from the category of things that have to be apologized for — for when our tourists criticize our hospital, they criticize us as individuals.
 "Better health and welfare of the people was the goal of the first hospital and the goal has never changed."

Methodists Decide Against Lake For Annual Conference

Myers Park Methodist church, Charlotte, was chosen as the site for the next annual session of the Western North Carolina conference of this denomination, and Bishop Clare Purcell set October 17, 18, 19 and 20 as the dates.
 Dr. Charles S. Kirkpatrick of Marion, chairman of the committee, made announcement of the choice of Charlotte after an early proposal that Lake Junaluska be selected failed to find sufficient favor to justify advancing the time of the session nearly two months, a condition which would have been necessary in case of convocation at that Methodist assembly ground.
 Customarily, the conference convenes annually during the third week in October, and strong sentiment for adherence to this plan was found to exist among ministers and laymen in the conference, the territory of which embraces the western half of North Carolina. At the time that Lake Junaluska was suggested as the conference seat, no invitation from elsewhere had been received by the committee.

Catty Friend—Are you sure your husband really goes hunting on those hunting trips he's always taking?
 Woman—Oh, yes, absolutely.

Catty Friend—But he so rarely brings any game home.

Woman—My dear, that's what makes me certain that he really goes.
