

County Home Clubs Hold Quarterly Meeting Saturday

The members of the Haywood County Council of the Home Demonstration Clubs decided not to hold the annual Spring Federation meeting due to existing conditions, and their quarterly meeting which was held Saturday afternoon in the office of the county home agent in the court house.

The council is composed of representatives from the eighteen clubs, which have a total membership of over five hundred, the largest group of organized women in the county. Mrs. Mark Ferguson, president, presided.

A schedule is being worked out through the clubs in the county for the members to aid the women in their communities in the conservation of food.

Miss Margaret Johnston, county chairman, spoke to the group on the progress that the county library system has made. She stated that there are now 17 book stations in the county serving practically the entire county. She thanked the club women for their support of the movement.

representatives visiting the local unit.

The best methods of farming, the best types of crops, fertilization, and feeding practices are all a part of the program. People from all over the South will visit this farm, it was pointed out by an official here yesterday.

The farm will always be open to the public to visit, and see the work that is going on. The test farm is the scene of the annual farm field day and picnics, which have been discontinued for the duration. Each summer between four and five thousand people visited the farm for the annual picnics.

One of the barns now on the farm will soon be converted into a modern dairy barn, and several other major improvements made so experiment work can go forward without loss of any time, it was pointed out.

The state board recently sent up a division to study burley tobacco. This work will be carried on at the Waynesville farm.

Besides bringing in agricultural specialists from all sections of the South, the test farm will be the site for 4-H and F.F.A. boys' judging teams of field crops and livestock. These special events are held throughout the year, and will bring in scores of young farmers during the course of each year.

The committee of the state board whose duty it was to select and buy a farm to replace the Swannanoa farm, have made several visits to this county, and each time consulted with the county agents office, the board of commissioners, and town aldermen for information and suggestions. The state board were warm in their praise of the cooperation given them by the local men in working out the many problems with which they were faced in finding the right type of farm.

The local officials spent many hours showing them over the county, and checking potential farms throughout the county.

A number of the members of the state board and others are expected here today to make some final plans for moving the farm at an early date.

The committee was made up of W. Kerr Scott, commissioner of agriculture; Dr. L. B. Bayer, director of N. C. Experiment Stations; Dean Colvard, superintendent of the W. N. C. farm; Fred Miller, in charge of N. C. Test Farms; D. Reeves Noland, of Clyde, route one, and a member of the state board of agriculture for the past 16 years, and L. L. Burgin, another member of the state board.

The state recently bought 410 acres in Ashe county which will be a supplementary unit of the Waynesville Test Farm. The Ashe county farm will be used for beef and sheep experiments. Superintendent Colvard will be in charge of both, but making his home here. Mr. Colvard became superintendent of the Swannanoa farm in 1940.

Before the drive is completed those in charge wish to have a star beside every name on the bulletin board. Regardless through which agency the bonds are bought the purchasers will have the privilege of stating what name they wish a star placed beside.

A special board containing the names of Haywood's casualties in World War II will also be placed in the banks. Gold stars will be placed beside these names as designated by bond purchasers.

Anticipating a heavy rush of sales at the bank here, members of the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee will assist in the sales, it was learned from Mrs. Medford.
