Plymouth Rock Lays Victory Egg Invasion Week

A Plymouth Rock hen belonging to Mrs. Shuford Howell, of Howell Mill Road, must have been disturbed by the thoughts of the invasion. She laid an egg last week after the Americans and the British crossed the Channel to France, of a dark brownish color, with a number of distinctive "V's" etched on the shell.

There has been much discussion among those who have seen the weird looking egg, as to this deviation from natural color and the designs with which it has been decorated. Some seemed confident that under the great tension of the invasion, the hen had scratched the "V's" and that the color was significant of the dark hour in history.

Plans Underway To Get Local Jobs For Disabled Veterans work, and not handouts and charity," the shoe manufacturing executive said, in discussing the general plan of going to the head of every business in the county, and putting up the plan to create jobs and have them waiting when the men return.

Mr. Rollman created scores of jobs after World War I, and found in every instance that the workers were efficient, and could turn out as much in production as fellow-workers.

"A one-legged man can sell tickets at a theatre as good as one with two legs; a man with one arm can do many things in plants as well as a man with two. It is just a matter of owners of business taking time to look about and making a few changes that will create jobs these handicapped men can do when they return," he continued.

Mr. Rollman has already consulted Washington officials, and they have encouraged the project, and termed it one of the best they had heard of.

The plan will be sent to every military hospital, and instructions issued that every wounded man from Haywood be told that there is a job awaiting him in the county upon his recovery and discharge from service. This news will be worth much more than medical treatment in many instances, it was pointed out. Before the plan can be publicized in hospitals, it will be necessary to have a general idea of the number of jobs that will be available.

The general survey of the county will get underway at once.

Joe E. Rose has donated office space on the second floor above the rationing board for Mr. Rollman's use in carrying on this work.

All owners of business interested in finding ways to give the handicapped soldiers employment should contact Mr. Rollman at once, and save him and associates the
