

TOWN PAVING TWO MILES OF STREETS

Project To Take Sixty Days, Six Streets Included

Work Started Tuesday On Paving Program; City Paying Cash For Job.

Work started Tuesday on a street paving program for the Town of Waynesville, which will involve more than two miles of important streets.

The program is expected to be completed within sixty days, according to officials of the Asheville Paving Company, low bidders on the work.

Streets to be paved under the program include: Maple, Meadow, Goodyear, Killian, Railroad, Richmond and part of Daisy Avenue. The longest stretch is from the Armory to the Ice Plant. Something like 19,000 square yards of asphalt will be used.

The streets were graded, widened, and surfaced with crushed stone under a WPA project several years ago. Street experts in surveying the condition of the streets, pointed out that to wait longer to apply the surface would cost considerable more, since the crushed stone on some streets was being scattered by traffic. Some of the streets will be 16 feet, while others will be 22 feet wide.

The contract was awarded on the yardage basis, it was learned from Grayden Ferguson, town manager.

The town board set up the cost of this street improvement program in the budget last year, and have the cash on hand to do the work.

"This paving program will prove to be a good investment," Mr. Ferguson said. "It will save us considerable expense in street maintenance, and give permanent, modern thoroughfares."

Music lessons are given in the new convent. The business school classes are held in the lower story of the rectory.

Quiet Labor Day Was Observed In This Area

This community observed Labor Day in a quiet manner. Business suspended for the day in all sections of the community, and in the absence of any formal program, most citizens remained at home.

A softball game was played at the high school stadium during the morning, and again in the afternoon. Pet Dairy had a perfect day on the field, winning from the Tannery by 9 to 6, and again in the afternoon won a 10 to 7 game from Dayton Rubber Co.

During the afternoon the 225 employees of Welco Shoe Corp., had their annual Labor Day picnic, and had as their special guests about a score of soldiers from Moore General Hospital.

Jonathan Woody was master of ceremonies, with Heinz Rollman making the principal address of the day. Mr. Rollman pointed out the general plans for reconversion, and discussed plans of the company for the future. During the program a telegram congratulating the employees was read from the Navy Department, and a cablegram was sent to General Eisenhower.

Boy Scouts Collect Over 1 Ton Waste Paper In Drive

Collections Will Continue Through Coming Week, and Public Asked To Cooperate.

Waynesville Troop Number Two, Boy Scouts have collected to date over a ton of waste paper in the current drive, it was learned yesterday. They will continue to make collections for the coming week and those wishing to make donations to the campaign are asked to call 202.

In cases where those who have called for the boys to collect paper from their premises, may not be at home when the truck is in that vicinity, they are asked to leave the paper in a convenient place so the boys can pick it up. Collections will probably be made in this area on next Wednesday.

The Waynesville troop is not making collections at Lake Junaluska now since the troop there is now working in the campaign.

The Waynesville troop and their leaders expressed appreciation of the use of the city truck on two collections and of the truck owned by Ed Simms on another collection tour. They have also had the truck of the Brading Gas Company at their disposal.

The Crabtree Scouts are making a drive in that township under the direction of Rev. Grady Burgin, sexton.
