They were dog-tired. It was now nine thirty at night and they had been driving steadily since two o'clock that morning, stopping only long enough to grab a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Mame's eyes were glazed from staring straight ahead on the road so that Joe could relax while she guided the huge truck through the maze of street traffic in the day time and relieved Joe. He did the night driving but that didn't relieve Mame much for she did the driving then, if only mentally. Somehow, that's the way it had always been. She did the driving, and Joe went where directed.

Joe wasn't exactly spineless but that old by seven years. Mame had and Mame had been married that her advice was pretty good—and it saved arguments. It hadn't taken Joe long to make the latter discovery.

Joe was forty and Mame wasn't old by seven years. Mame had

Musical Program To Be Heard At Church Of God In Hazelwood

The public and all singers are invited to attend a musical program at the Church of God in Hazelwood at 8 o'clock this evening. W. G. Queen will be in charge of the program, according to an announcement by Rev. S. C. Lowery, pastor of the church.

gotten him this job, a splendid one from the financial angle, and she had countered his repeated, "Let's get a home, Mame, and stay put awhile. Driving a transfer truck across country doesn't give a fellow much time to have a garden." But Mame had always the same answer, "We'll have plenty of time for the house and the garden, too, when we make money while we can. After awhile there won't be so much trucking." And that had settled it.

But Joe was thinking how nice it would be if he could be pulling up in front of his own little cottage instead of the hotel in this little town. They were too worn out to try to make more mileage that night, so they went into the hotel, dirty and completely exhausted.

Joe envied the folks sitting around the lobby, chatting pleasantly, but he took the key from the room clerk, paid for the night's lodging, and dragged his tired feet up the stairs. Mame preceded him and found the numbered room before he had reached the last step. "Here we are," she called and he followed her into the room after unlocking the door. He switched on the light, and they looked at each other in astonishment. Never before had they been given such a room in a hotel. Ruffled curtains at the windows, growing vines and potted plants, silk bed spread and satin coverlet; a radio on the writing table, black enamel toilet articles on the dresser and a bathroom. And what a bathroom; spotless, plenty of bath towels, face cloths and a gleaming tub waiting to be filled with hot and cleansing water. They both made a dive for the bathroom. A hot bath was what they needed to bolster up their exhausted morale. Then they matched to see who would have the first shot at that luxury. Mame won, and Joe decided to turn on the radio. This was Heaven, and no fooling.

Then a bolt hit that evidently wasn't from the direction of Heavenly bodies. Some one was pounding on the door and yelling, "What are you doing in my room? Get out of there as quickly as you can. And turn off my radio."

Joe was dumfounded. Too many surprising things had happened that night but this was the last

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Oct. 22 is Deut. 6:4-9; Proverbs 9:10; Matt. 7:7-12; Luke 6:39-45; II Tim. 2:15, the Golden Text being John 8:32. "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.")

"HEAR, O ISRAEL: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

"And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart:

"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up."

"And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thy eyes."

"And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates."

These were the words of Moses to the children of Israel as they wandered in the desert seeking the land the Lord had promised them. At first they were used figuratively, but later assumed a literal translation, and we quote:

Contain Scrolls of Parchment
"The sign on the hand being made to denote a phylactery on the biceps of the left arm, and the frontlets between the eyes a phylactery on the forehead. Each of these phylacteries contains four sections from the Pentateuch inscribed on scrolls of parchment. . . . The expression to write them upon the posts of the house was later construed literally and gave rise to the custom of the mezuzah, which consists of affixing a small cylinder enclosing an inscribed parchment to the upper part of the right hand door-post of every Jewish home."

You remember how the Jews, in their wanderings, forgot these teachings again and again and were punished time after time for their unfaithfulness.

morals at his mother's or father's knee, seldom goes far wrong in after life.

Jesus tells us to pray to the Father: "Ask and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." An earthly father would not dream, if his child asked for bread, of giving him a stone that looked like a loaf; or if he asked for fish of giving him a serpent. If an earthly father would then give good gifts to his children, how much more would God, Father of us all, give good gifts to us? John 1:9

Worship and faith that God will give us those things that are good for us come first. Then our moral education—the manner in which we shall live. Jesus said: "If we see a speck in our brother's eye—or if our brother or sister have a fault, to put it another way—should we criticize him, ignoring the fact that we have many more grievous faults? First we should correct our own faults, then, if ever, should we accuse our neighbor."

Good Tree Brings Good Fruit

"For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit."

"For every tree is known by his own fruit. . . . A good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man out of the evil treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is evil."

"Study to shew thyself approved until God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." Paul wrote to Timothy.

If we are true and faithful to the very best way of life; if we do those things that we know are right, and leave undone the things that we are sure are evil, we will be "approved until God." We will show ourselves good workmen, who can be proud of our work.

The final test of our lives will be if we can truly keep the Golden Rule, which is also part of today's lesson:

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."

Pvt. Farady B. Rathbone Now In France

Private Farady B. Rathbone, son of Mrs. W. P. Rathbone, of Fines Creek, is now serving with the armed forces in France, according to information received by his mother.

Pvt. Rathbone is attached to the medical corps and has been in the service since October, 1942. From information in his letter to his mother, it was learned that Pvt. Rathbone is of the opinion that there will be plenty of work before victory is declared in the European war theatre.

straw. "We're not in the wrong room," he answered back, raising his voice so that it could be heard over the rushing water that was streaming into the bathtub over which Mame was leaning expectantly. Then he looked at the key number hanging from the keyhole. "What number is on the door?", he asked, hoping against hope. But that hope died instantly. The number given was not the number he was gazing at, but the floor below. Then he knew what had happened.

When the hubbub had settled down and each family was in its rightful room, Mame turned to Joe and whispered, "Joe, that nice looking room has made me decide we're going to have one, too. This is your last trip on that truck."

Joe kissed her good night. Nothing could surprise him now.

Son Of Recreational Director In Famous Artillery Unit

Marine First Class Edwin W. Tenny, Jr., son of E. W. Tenny, recreational director of the Community Council, is one of two North Carolina Marines who are members of an artillery unit which laid down a devastating 60-hour barrage on Peleliu, hammering Jap positions at the rate of one shell every six seconds.

Pfc. Tenny is a veteran of action on Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester. He worked in the fire direction center for the batteries where no one slept and scarcely ate for almost three days. In the first day's barrage, 26 fire missions were aimed at the Japs. One fire mission alone sent 500 shells into the enemy lines. Over 3,000 projectiles hit the Japs in the first 24 hours.

As the battle reached its height on the third morning and the battalion's gun crews hurled 3,000 projectiles at the enemy in a single hour. A total of 10,000 shells sprayed the Jap lines in the second 24 hours to consummate 30 fire missions. Jap soldiers, tanks, field pieces, machine guns and mortar placements were knocked to death and silenced by the guns.

Pfc. Tenny's grandfather fought in the Confederate Army in the War Between the States, an uncle in the Spanish American War and his father is a veteran of World War I.

Ben Atkins Promoted To Technical Sergeant

Benjamin S. Atkins, son of Mrs. James Atkins, Jr., of Waynesville, who is now residing at Carolina Beach, has recently been promoted to Technical Sergeant, according to information received from headquarters of the Fifth Air Force in the Southwest Pacific.

Sgt. Atkins is serving with the "Air Apaches" hard hitting bomber-strafer unit in the Southwest Pacific and first B-25 outfit to hit the Philippines on the road back. The Air Apaches are specialists in low level strafing and bombing attacks against enemy airdromes and shipping have been on the job for the past 17 months. They have destroyed 163 enemy vessels of all types, 218 Nip aircraft on the ground and 99 in the air. The Air Apaches are now active in the 5th AAF steamroller drive toward the enemy's homeland.

Sgt. Atkins is a graduate of the local high school and alumnus of the University of North Carolina. Before entering the service he was employed by the Federal Government's bureau of Engineers. He entered the service in February, 1942 and trained as a radio operator and aerial gunner in South Dakota and Florida. His wife, Mrs. Dorothy D. Atkins, is residing in Berry, Ga., while Sgt. Atkins is in the service.

IT'S NO CIRCUS!

They may look like daring young men on the flying trapeze. But they're electric linemen, fifty feet in the air, with no net underneath.

It's tough enough up there on a sunny summer day. It's much worse on a wet black night — or when everything's slippery with sleet. But the job must be done. It's part of giving you good electric service.

Fortunately, there are men who have the courage and skill to do it. Just as there are other men who control complicated switchboards in lightning storms, or keep a careful watch on giant turbines, or crawl in hot boilers to make repairs.

These folks know what to do because they've been doing it a long time. Men and women grow up in the electric light and power business. It takes years to become a power-plant engineer. Lineman — load dispatcher — service man — almost every job is specialized and technical.

The value of this practical experience — and of sound business management — has been dramatically proved by war. In spite of shortages of many essentials, there is no shortage of electricity — and it is still sold at low pre-war prices!

Hear Nelson Eddy every Wednesday evening in the brilliant new musical show — "The Electric Hour" — with Robert Armstrong's Orchestra, 10:30 PM, EWT, CBS Network.
