Lt. A. R. Dietz Serves In Heavy Mortar Barrage

Lt. Alvin P. Dietz, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Dietz of Waynesville, won a high spot in an article in TTF, servicemen's paper printed for the Infantry combat teams in France, in an issue dated Oct. 4. In a heavy mortar barrage the Americans blasted the German forces until they were completely annihilated when the three hour deadly attack was over.

Lt. Dietz led a 30 Cal. machine gun platoon who were situated on a hill overlooking the town directing a sharp blazing curtain of fire. The Germans evidently hadn't counted on this effective support of the riflemen. This was the same mortar machine gun crew who had helped the doughboys take the town. And once again they came through for their fellow soldiers.

At the battle's end, any acts of heroism were related. One story is told how Dietz and Pvt. Irving Jacobs of Chicago, had gone forward, previous to this counter attack and amidst enemy shellfire, laid telephone wires from their observation post to the rifle company. It was also Dietz and Jacobs, according to the TTF report, who crawled forward with S/Sgt. Vermer Nelsch of Haven, Kan. through enemy shellfire to bring C. Rations to the men in their foxholes.

Lt. Dietz left here with the National Guard in 1940 and attended Officers Training school at Fort Benning. He has been overseas since July. His wife, the former Miss Maebell Wilson and small son, Earl, are residing with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Wilson in Canton, while he is in the service.
