Hyatt, prominent business and civic leader, director and vice president of the Haywood Home Building and Loan Association were adopted at a recent meeting of the Association, and signed by the committee composed of R. L. Prevost, L. N. Davis, and A. T. Ward:

"That whereas, death has invaded our ranks and removed from among us E. J. Hyatt, who was for many years a member of the Board of Directors and Vice-President of Haywood Home Building & Loan Association; and, whereas, the members of the Board of Directors of said Association and their attorneys feel very deeply and keenly the loss sustained by the Association, the community and the State, and wish to give formal expression of their respect to his family, and their appreciation of his life and service:

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Directors of said Association at regular meeting on the 8th day of July, 1946:

First, that in the death of E. J. Hyatt the community and county have lost an honorable and patriotic citizen;

Second, that in the death of E. J. Hyatt, this Association has lost an honored and able Director and Vice-President, and the State has lost an upright and patriotic citizen ever loyal to her best interests;

INTERMISSION
Now that most of the corn is "laid by" and our oats and hay cut and stacked, the people in our community are enjoying the relaxation and pleasure of our children's visits, as so many of the boys are home on furloughs and married sons and daughters are bringing their families for reunions.

The joy of the boys from Camp Hemlock who ride by in their green jeep is contagious. The adults and the children get a kick out of visiting the fur farm. There one may see silver and platinum foxes, the titches and minks, beavers and strange and native birds bring interest to all visitors.

Warrant Officer Wilson Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Howell, is back from the Atomic Bomb test.

Wayne Moody is on leave and is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moody.

Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Jessup, of Lenoir, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Whidden during the week. Rev. Jessup is a former pastor of the Methodist church here.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cogdill and children have returned to their home in Detroit after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cogdill. They were accompanied by Calvin Cogdill who will remain for a few weeks visit.

Some Tall Corn

ANY TASSELS YET? The best crop of corn on Capitol Hill in Raleigh this season is, appropriately enough, right in the front yard of the State Department of Agriculture Building. In the immediate foreground may be seen cotton thriving amidst the shrubs, and on the other side of the entrance are small crops of tobacco and soybeans.

Readjustment Allowance Is Poor Substitute For Job, Says Kendall

RALEIGH—Readjustment allowances, even though a fine stop-gap, are a poor substitute for a job, Chairman Henry E. Kendall, of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission, warns unemployed veterans.

An unemployed veteran, after he has sought work through his local Employment Service office, is often his own best employment agent, Chairman Kendall said, urging those claiming readjustment allowances for unemployment to engage in a diligent search for jobs.

Many unemployed veterans are not waiting for jobs, but are starting out on their own by setting up some kind of small industry, business or service which they or a small group can handle, and thus create jobs, not only for themselves, but also for small numbers of their buddies.

Veterans who have developed new skills while in military service, or who had been at work for others before entering the service, often can convince friends in their own communities that they are equal to handling a small activity and thus receive financial aid in securing needed equipment, supplies or tools for launching their own careers.

Very many of the thousands of jobs which were open a year ago have been filled by workers released from the service and now veterans do not have the choice of employment which was available to them then, Chairman Kendall points out.

"The veteran who unnecessarily delays his own readjustment to civilian occupation does himself an injustice, since by such delay he may allow a job to be filled or a small industry to be started into which he could have fitted himself," said Chairman Kendall.

MRS. W. T. RAINER

Revival Closes
The revival meeting which has been conducted at the Shady Grove Methodist church closed Wednesday night, after a most successful series of services, which have been attended by large crowds on each night. Rev. Kelley, of Valdosta, Ga., has conducted the service.

Woman's Society Begins Study
The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church will begin the study this week of the book, "The Divine Fatherhood," at the meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Williams.

The storm Sunday night did considerable damage to the crops on the Creek. Waters were high and much corn was blown down.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Prebeck and small daughter, Mary Frances, of Baltimore, are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Howell. Mrs. Prebeck was before her marriage, Miss Mary Jo Howell.

Mrs. Robert Boyd and daughter, of Brevard, were the guests during the week of the Dave Boyd family.

Roy A. Howell, of Asheville, spent Sunday with his family on the Creek.

Marion Ellis Howell will be among the members of the 4-H club to go to Camp Roanoke on Monday, to spend a week and while there will see a performance of "The Lost Colony."

self," said Chairman Kendall.

"More workers are becoming available for the jobs that are open now and there is little prospect that jobs will be much more plentiful in the near future than they are. Readjustment allowances are only temporary and unless the veteran conserves them, they may be gone when he most needs them.

"Families, friends and home communities can render invaluable service to the great group of young veterans who have had no previous civilian occupations or experience in job hunting. Home folks who are experienced in various types of employment can help thousands of these young veterans, either in helping them to find jobs that already exist or in advising and aiding them in developing jobs through starting some small activity which may grow into a community, a state or a national asset," said Chairman Kendall.
