

F. F. A. Members Enjoy Week At White Lake

Two F. F. A. members from the Waynesville chapter and five from Fines Creek returned Tuesday with the High School vocational agriculture teachers from the state F. F. A. Camp at White Lake, where they had spent a week.

During their week at White Lake, which is near Lincolnton, they took a one-day trip to Carolina Beach for swimming in the ocean. At the camp, where 270 club members were assembled they enjoyed a varied athletic program, including golf and volleyball, ping pong, swimming, with lessons given those who did not swim.

Riding down with the Waynesville teacher W. E. Pursley were Pink Francis, president of the local chapter, and Mark Hollingsworth, John Nesbitt, the agriculture teacher at Fines Creek, was in charge of the five who attended from there.

Phil Medford, Kirk Well, and Carey Wells, the latter of Canton, are spending this week at Myrtle Beach.

ground of the general sophistication of the play. She played her role with charming naturalness.

Grace Shiner, Chicago actress, here as a guest artist for a fortnight, in the role of Claudia's mother, acted with a more finished case than most of the players, and did an admirable job of impersonating the mother.

W. L. Lawrence Benson's acting improved as the play progressed. At the opening he seemed lacking in expression, but as his role developed it was evident that his manner was a natural to contrast his wife's effervescence.

June Cole and Monroe Lewis were perfectly cast in their roles, not only in speech but their movements about the stage.

Jack Pyle, as the man of the world novelist who knew it all, yet was stumped by Claudia's innocence, did his part well.

Louise Gagnon as Madam Darschka, the opera singer, displayed the usual temperamental whims of the artist and her friend Julia Naughton, played by Cecelia Stack, who was fed up with life and envied her brother-in-law and his wife their down to earth level of living, carried off her part with pleasing grace.

All players were a credit to the ability of Maurice Geoffry, managing director.

Survey Made

maps, the leaders stressed the importance of adequate state highways to these sections, otherwise the public could not get to the areas.

Early Thursday morning the party left for another inspection tour, going to the lower end of the county, including Fines Creek, White Oak, and the Cold Springs area. A complete study was made of the proposed water-level road to Newport through the section, and general views gotten of the new areas the road would open up for farming and cattle raising.

Mr. Redden and the other members of the party were well pleased with the surveys, and the cooperation that prevails on the general over-all development program now under way.

"These surveys have been extremely beneficial in every way. I now have a thorough understanding of the needs, conditions and the plans here in Haywood. The leadership of Haywood is to be congratulated for their far-reaching program, and the 100 per cent unity of all groups in working towards attaining them," Mr. Redden said after the return yesterday.

"The entire program is most impressive, and certainly can be well done, and the drab high school auditorium was converted into a good resemblance of a real theater.

As part of his primary campaign, Mr. Redden stressed immediate, and further development of the Park on the North Carolina side. His survey into some of the most scenic sections of the Park Wednesday is evidence of his intentions to carry out his promises.

Looking up Big Creek towards Mt. Guyot, towering 6,621 feet high, he said, "I have seen many beautiful scenes, but it would take a long time to find one to surpass this one." As he stood on the bank of the swift stream, fishermen below were pulling out 12-inch trout with apparent ease. Turning to the group, he remarked, "Every American should have the benefit of enjoying such places as this. I am going to do my part to see that they can."

Among those accompanying Mr. Redden, included: C. N. Allen, Dr. Tom Stringfield, C. E. Brown, Ed L. Sims, W. Hugh Massie, W. Curtis Russ, William Medford, John Needham, Chief Park Ranger; Glenn Palmer, Robert D. Coleman, Canton, Charles Ray, Blair Ross, superintendent of the Park, George A. Brown, Jr., James Henderson, Canton, David Underwood, R. B. Day-enport, Jonathan H. Woods, Grayden C. Ferguson, Patrolman O. R. Roberts, joining the group at lunch on Wednesday were Miss S. A. Jones and R. L. Prevost.

Mr. Redden was accompanied here from Hendersonville and on the trips by Sam Pickard, official of Columbia Broadcasting System, a resident of Hendersonville.
