Son of Creator Of Sherlock Holmes Asks For Royalties

LONDON-Adrian Conan Doyle, son of the creator of Sherlock Holmes, thanked the Russians for representing the fictional detective as a defender of private property and suggested that they hand over royalties for the Holmes books which have been published in the Soviet Union

Writing to the Daily Mirror about a recent article in a Moscow paper which described Holmes as a deplorably capitalistic type, Doyle

"I would recommend that they entertain their readers with a bright article on the practices of their own government, who in publishing the Sherlock Holmes books have overlooked the legal and absurdly moral necessity of paying a rouble in royalties to the owners of the copyrights.'

Precaution Taken At State University Against Influenza

€HAPEL HILL-With a record enrollment of approximately 7,000 students, and fully aware of what might happen should an influenza epidemic hit the campus this year, the University of North Carolina, through its Student Health Service, is taking steps to avert any serious outbreak of the insidious disease.

Every student is being given the opportunity and urged to take an ifnluenza vaccination, and more than 3,500 had availed themselves of it by the end of this week. The vaccination also will be available at the University Infirmary Mon-

There is no charge for the vaccinations, which have been highly recommended by the State Board of Health and by the various health services of the nation. The vaccinations are being given in a number of the larger educational institutions of the country.

Divisional Insignia Become Cattle Brands

CHEYENNE, Kyo. - Reproductions of insignia worn into battle in the Second World War are beginning to appear on Wyoming ranges along with the familiar brands that long have denoted ownership of cattle.

Among the brands of this type already registered are the patches of the paratroopers and the 89th and 34th Infantry divisions, and pilot wings centered by the er's initials.

eroded R. W. Graeber of State College. who is in charge of Extension Forestry, says that a good portion of this land should be reclaimed through the planting of trees. As matters now stand, these lands are returning little if any income.

Graeber maintains that a balance should be established between land in cultivation, land in pasture, and land in growing timber. As a general rule, he says that trees should be planted on idle open fields not suited for profitable annual crops or for good pasture.

Large openings in the woods, where root competition is not too great, may also be planted. In the Mountains and the upper Piedmont. where woods are open or poorly stocked because of grazing, he suggests underplantings of white pine or Norway spruce.

For general planting, Graeber recommends the spacing of forest trees about 6 by 7 feet. This requires 1,000 trees per acre. In re-

New Bus Routes Open Up In North America

NEW YORK-Bus travel is opening up this fall at both ends of North America. Service is now available three times a week on the 1,600-mile Alaska Highway and many tourist hostels are springing up along the route.

Below the border bus transportation is still inexpensive in Mexico-the 700-mile trip from New Laredo to Mexico costs about $6.00 second class, the 270-mile Mexico City-Acapulco run about $3. New tours, with side trips, are available in El Salvador, Honduras and Nica-
