SMART ONE O. Max Gardner is the smart one. He stopped the sheet trends on their party plan celebrating his appointment as ambassador to Great Britain until confirmation by the Senate. It will be held next spring.

Gardner tells this on himself. When he was about 14 years old, he made his first trip to the ocean. He people had never had this opportunity, so he captured a bottle of ocean water to take home with him. On the train out of Morehead, the conductor asked him if that was sea water. When young Gardner replied yes, the conductor warned him that the tide was due to begin rising in a few moments and advised him to pour out some of the salt water to prevent wetting the seat.

May look him at his word, poured out about half the bottle.

He says he was about 21 before he saw through the trick.

Automobile Manufacturers Facing Another Unhappy Year For 1947

By DAVID J. WILKIE
AP Automotive Reporter

DETROIT — Beseet by materials shortages and labor troubles in its own plants and those of its suppliers, the nation's automobile industry struggled through one of its unhappiest years in 1946.

And, at the moment, the outlook for 1947 is not very bright. Sheet steel will continue a major worry and production volume during the first six months of the year probably will not exceed that of the last half of 1946.

The one thing the car manufacturers know positively about 1947 is that whatever new models are introduced early in the year will differ only slightly from those produced in 1946. The changes will be confined to the radiator grilles, hub caps and instrument panels—just enough alteration to distinguish the 1947 from the 1946 model.

What will be done about prices remains the manufacturers' own secret.

Prices may well be influenced, however, by the measure of success of the CIO United Automobile Workers in gaining their 1947 contract demands. The UAW already has announced that in addition to a basic wage increase a demand will be made for an equalization fund to standardize rates of pay throughout the industry. Social Security and retirement clauses also will be pressed.

In their planning for 1946—the first full calendar year after the war — the car makers scheduled something like 4,500,000 passenger and 1,000,000 commercial vehicles for production. They made approximately 2,000,000 passenger cars and around 900,000 trucks.

Biggest obstacle to high level production again was the shortage of sheet steel. The truck production program was less severely affected because trucks use relatively little sheet steel. There were other shortages of course, like bumper steel and spring wire, that forced manufacturers to deliver many vehicles minus bumpers and rear seat backs and cushions.

In the main, however, the industry's major problem was sheet steel and manufacturers traced its scarcity back to the basic industry strikes of early 1946.

Removal of governmental controls was followed by price increases in varying amounts for most cars. But production throughout the year was costly and actual earnings for 1946 were relatively small for all car builders. In most instances large tax credits carried over from last year were needed to show only modest net profits.

The price increases tightened up demand somewhat but the industry will start 1947 with a larger bank of unfilled orders than it had on hand at the start of this year. The most conservative estimates of the extent of the backlog place the total at about 5,000,000, allowing for the fact that many would-be buyers have placed as many as three and four different orders.

Additionally, something like 5,000,000 cars now in operation will not survive the winter. Not all of these, of course, are in the indispensable classification; perhaps half of them will not have to be replaced immediately. They do, however, represent potential demand that the industry will not overlook when it catches up with orders on hand.

Even before World War II shooting stopped in either Europe or the Pacific, two million veterans of the armed services in World War II, had left uniform, in addition to those who died.

Six Lynchings Are Recorded In '46 By Tuskegee Inst.

Six persons were lynched during 1946 in the United States, while there were at least 17 instances in which lynchings were prevented.

This information was compiled by the Tuskegee Institute for release this week.

All six persons lynched were Negroes. The offences charged were: stealing a saddle, 1; two other persons later confessed this crime; stabbing a man, 1; no charge, 3; attempting to break into a house, 1 (jailed but later released). The three who were lynched with no offenses charged to them were in an automobile with one of the victims, and were killed to prevent identification of members of the mob.

Four of the deaths occurred in Georgia, one each in Mississippi and Louisiana. There are four borderline cases which are not included, explains F. D. Patterson, because to date sufficient evidence concerning them has not been obtained.

Records of past years show only one lynching in 1945, two in 1944, three in 1943, and five in 1942. Of the cases in which lynchings were prevented, 14 were by officers of the law, and three by other persons. One instance was in the north. Twenty-two persons were saved from death.

Sentinels of Health
Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living life itself is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste—Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Attended the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
