Bust of Augustus Or Caesar's Bust LONDON — (AP) — A bust believed to have been made by the Romans to depict Caesar Augustus, who died A. D. 14, has been found among a collection stacked in the music room of one of the ancient homes in England. The bust, which was at Tottenham House, Savernake Forest, the former home of the Marquis of Ailesbury, was among the Ailesbury Collection stored there. The ability of the bust will be decided by the British Museum, to which the estate architect, Mr. W. H. Brooke, has sent a photograph. Hard to Grow In general, eggplant is not a good plant for the beginner, or very small gardener to grow. It requires a long, warm season, abundant moisture, a very rich soil and arduous attention to insect and disease control. Its food value is very low. Three or four good plants will produce enough for a family, but most gardeners are disappointed with results.

TEEN TALK

Dear Judge, Now that the snow is coming down in bucketsful all the kids are getting ski happy. Of course some of the heps are new to the sport but they have worked out a good system so that they all get the advantage of lessons. Each weekend one of the kids will take a lesson and pass on the dope to the others. In that way by the end of the season everybody will have at least one lesson and all will be on ski-track. So far no broken bones or sprained ankles. Just a few frosty fingers. For basketball-minded kids Dolores Lipsky, of Bethlehem, Pa., suggests wearing bright plaid shirts and overalls, which are all the rage with her crowd—Toots, Rosey and Janie. For passing on the suggestion Dolores wonders if anybody can give her some good advice on new riding fashions for teen-agers. She says riding pants seem a little outmoded and she'd like something super-slick. Dolores Gulotta of Brooklyn, N. Y., won the Tommy Tucker talent search for girl vocalist.

Nearly Lands in Soup EASTON, MD. — Fishermen complained recently that something was getting their bait near the waterfront home of James N. Bennett of Easton. Mrs. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferlick of Pittsburgh decided to do something about it. They set out, and after several hours of angling, hooked a large sea turtle. The 25-pound turtle was sent to a Washington restaurant for stew, but zoo officials learned that it was an unusual specimen of the chelonina family group. They sent around a zoo limousine, and the turtle has a new home.

Here's a style note for hep clothes-filles: The popular leather soled ballet slipper has been tucked at the toe for the 1947 clean-up look which the kids seem to be going in for now that they have shed sloppy-jill sweaters. The prediction is the thong-sandal will be a big teen hit in the spring. What think, keedo? At last there is a chemistry set for girls! It is a little perfume kit containing formulas for five different fragrances and instructions for creating new odors. Jo Ann made 24 drams of perfume, the best of which was one she concocted on her own inspiration and she called it "Hepsatia."

Mountain Mystery The mystery of the roars emanating from old Rumbling Bald (mountain) at Lake Lure, N. C., has been explained by scientists who say they are caused by boulders falling from the top of caves deep in the mountain.

IT'S FEET FIRST FOR PRETTY BETTY

BORN WITHOUT FEET, pretty Betty Lempe, 21, turns dancing eyes upon the future as she learns from doctors in a Chicago hospital that, after an operation, she'll be ready for a pedal attachment which will make it possible for her to walk and walk. Upon hearing the news, Sharon Lobeck, aged 22 months, a fellow patient, throws her arms around Betty and wishes her all the luck in the world. (International Soundphoto)

Find Body of Mussolini Hidden in Monastery MILAN, ITALY. — The body of Benito Mussolini, stolen April 22 from an unmarked grave in a potter's field here by self-styled "Democratic Fascists," has been found in a trunk at a Pavia monastery. The police said two monks had been taken into custody in the investigation in addition to three laymen already held. The body was being guarded at a local police station pending the receipt of further instructions from Rome. The Milan newspaper Corriere Della Sera said the civil police chief had received instructions from the national capital to bury the body "in sacred ground and in a place unknown to the public." However, this report was not confirmed by official sources here. The body was found in the Carthusian monastery of Certosa at Pavia, where, police said, it had been taken from the Monastery of St. Angelo, its first hiding place after being exhumed at the potter's field.

Effects of Lime Lime "sweetens" the land as it helps phosphates, nitrogen, potash and other nutrients to do their work of building up the soil. Improving the soil improves the quality of the food and feed it produces. Forage production, for example, has been reported to have increased 57 per cent from the application of limestone and triple superphosphate. At the same time, the protein content of the forage increased more than 40 per cent.

Strange Prehistoric Shark Left Imprint on Beach

Life writes the diary of its millenniums in strange hieroglyphs on the pages of the rocks. For 10 years Dr. Roland W. Brown, paleontologist of the geological survey working with the fossil collections of the Smithsonian Institution, has set aside from time to time curious impressions on sandstone which presumably are made about 200 million years ago by wind-blown palm leaves in the soft ooze of far-scattered sea beaches. He could not identify them and finally came to question whether they were made by any sort of leaves. Exploring all probable alternatives he has finally determined that they were made by the egg capsules of fossil fishes of an ancient sharklike family whose ways of life were about the same in the heyday of the dinosaurs as in present-day oceans. These leathery egg shells, he concluded, were the only known objects in nature which could have left precisely that sort of record. These fishes were chimaeras, distantly related to the sharks, and for millions of years were among the weirdest denizens of the seas. About 25 species exist today. The chimaeras are found in all parts of the world and range from shallow coastal waters to abyssal depths. They lay relatively enormous eggs—about a fourth as long as the adult fish. The front part of such an egg is provided with a valve which opens automatically to permit the young fish to escape as soon as it has developed sufficiently inside the leathery "shell" to be born.

U. S. Population Now in Excess of 141 Million WASHINGTON—The nation has now passed the 141,000,000 mark in population, official figures disclosed. The cross-over was made during July. It was shown by the census estimate included in a treasury report on the amount of money in circulation at the start of this month. The report showed that although circulating money increased $82,670 during July to a total of $26,245,799,782, the even faster growth of population by 129,000 to a total of 141,104,000—reduced the average amount in circulation for each man, woman or child 17 cents to a total of $200.17.

1,174,476 Japs Killed in Fighting, Survey Shows TOKYO. — Japan's grab for empire, dating from the outbreak of the China affair, July 7, 1937, to war's end August 15, 1945, cost her 1,174,476 dead among army and navy personnel and civilian employees of the armed forces. The figure was listed in a new survey of the demobilization ministry. The figure does not include civilians killed in American plane raids on Japan.

College Farmer The commanding officer demanded that he be obeyed without question or explanation. He stopped two soldiers who were carrying a soup kettle out of the kitchen. "Here," he growled, "let me taste that." One of the soldiers gave him a spoon. He tasted it and yelled: "Do you call that soup?" "No, sir," replied the soldier. "It's dish water we was emptying, sir."

Later Acquisition Lovey — I suppose you're angry with me because I came home late last night with a black eye? Dovey—Not at all, dear. In case you don't remember it, when you came home you didn't have that black eye.

Importance of Eggs "The egg is the cement that holds the castles of cookery together," once said a famous chef. You may use eggs to thicken a custard or sauce, to leaven or lighten a soufflé or cake, to hold together oil and vinegar in a creamy mayonnaise. Use egg whites to make cloudy soups clear, or an egg shell with some of the white still clinging to "settle" muddy coffee. The plateau at the South Pole is 8,500 feet above sea level.
