Chamber of Commerce, we hope for the looks of Main Street that the town officials (and the taxpayers) find a way to purchase the property. Until the sun gets high up in the sky, it does not strike that section of the street, due to the number of buildings we have in that area-and we aren't a city, and the sun streaming in between the rows of buildings with a touch of sky is one of the advantages of a small town. The mountains as a background, with a stretch of sky and on bright days the sun coming through the after gives one a feeling of being in the open of which the closed area deprives us. The next time you pass that way on Main street early in the morning, step in front of the building and you will see what we mean and get the feel of the thing. The absence of the building would give a break which would also add immeasurably to the appearance of the street-like adding a window to a dark room.

The solons in Raleigh seem to be having trouble over what to do about women serving on juries and the complications of extra rooms the maps ones for the women, adjoining those of the men because the group by law must not be separated. One Raleigh writer puts it thus, "The Wake county courthouse will have to do more than hang Chintz curtains in the mry room to make ready for the women jurors. They are going to have to enlarge the quarters for the women, with an extra room. which most also be connecting. If the women finally get the privilegefor have the duty imposed upon them, which way you look at the matters, this problem will arise here in Haywood county. When one considers it locally, one realizes that there will have to be a few doors cut in the rooms back of the courtroom to make connections While so much has been brought up we wonder if they will allow the women to bring their home every office in the court house.

IN MEMORY . . .

The War has long been ended With shouts of Victory We're thankful ever thankful The world lights up with glee,

We missed the boys who struggled Thro' years of gallant strife With thankfulness we greeted them For us they risked their life.

But there's a lad we won't forcet Who gave his life for us His body resting far away Has now returned to dust

If we could only place a flower Upon that rugged mound In honor of the one who sleeps In Okinawa's hallowed ground.

We may never visit The grave of he who died But the memory of him lives with-

Till we're walking by his side. Mrs. Roy B. Medford.
