Mrs. Howard Hyatt was driving the Pontiac and Charles Burgin the truck, with three others in the cab at the time of the accident. No one was injured, although the truck was badly torn up and an estimated $500 to $600 property damage inflicted on the automobile. The same evening Lester Wood, operating a Pontiac, was driving toward town along Smathers street, skidded and ran into the protective railing of the bridge near the depot. He was arrested on the charge of reckless driving by Policeman Jerry Rogers and at the trial in Mayor's Court Wednesday, was given a 96-day road sentence, suspended on the payment of $25 fine and the cost of repairs to the bridge. Early Wednesday morning two automobiles were driving down Main street from Hazelwood at a fast rate of speed, sideswiped and knocked to the curbs on either side of the street near the First Baptist church. Furman "Mutt" Tate, driving Henry Caldwell's Ford, received minor injuries, although Caldwell, who was in the car with him, and Jess Crouser, operating the Buick Sedan which collided with the Ford, were not hurt. Tate and Crouser have been charged with reckless driving with trial scheduled in Mayor's Court on Monday afternoon.

Home Club

(Continued from Page One) conferences by working with the ministers to promote religious education in the very rural areas. They voted to continue their efforts for the state's number one problem, good health. They plan to accept the responsibility of getting young home makers and mothers into their clubs. They voted to send a delegate from the western district to the Rural Women's Conference of the World meeting to be held in Holland in September, with each county being asked to share their proportionate part of the expenses. A committee is to be named later to choose the delegate. Miss Verna Stanton, assistant state home demonstration agent, made a strong appeal to the women in her talk on "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." "Home makers all over the world must put first things first in order that they may give their families what they need," said Miss Stanton. She made a plea for decent, sanitary and attractive homes, pointing out that the future of the children was reflected in their home influences, and she stressed the value of a well-balanced program, and urged that above all else the home must be built to include work for all its members. Miss Elizabeth Lovell, state health educator, told the women of the relation of nutrition to good health and pointed out their responsibility in the home. The meeting opened at 10:30 in the main auditorium of the church with the invocation by Mrs. O. C. Newell, of Haywood county, followed by welcomes extended by Mrs. Paul Robinson, president of the county council and Miss Nancy Poston, president of the Haywood 4-H county council. Mrs. Joe Wallin, of Jackson county, responded. Greetings were brought by Mrs. J. S. Gray, second vice president of the state federation; Miss Anna G. Rowe, former district agent, who worked many years in the area; Jack Messer and W. A. Corpening. Mrs. Pauline Hotchkiss, district agent, introduced the special guests attending the meeting. Three-minute reports were given by the presidents of the county councils and the 4-H clubs. At noon lunch was served in the dining room of the church, after which the afternoon session convened for the talks by the state officials and the reports of the various committees, including the resolution committee with Mrs. Paul Sudderth, of Cherokee, serving as chairman, and Mrs. Ben Warner of the courtesy group. The church was decorated with large baskets of early summer flowers and quantities of azalea and ferns, by Mrs. F. L. Safford, of Fines Creek, and her committee.

New Author

DAPHNE ATHAS, author of "The Weather of the Heart," was born in Cambridge and lived for a time in seaside Gloucester, Mass., before she moved to Chapel Hill, N. C., to finish high school and college; her novel is laid in a place which she calls Kittery Point, on the coast of Maine. This is Miss Athas' first published work, and she finished it when she was 22, still young enough to remember the point of view of the four teenage boys and girls who are her principal characters. One of the quartet, Claw Moreau, has only one eye, and he wears a black patch over the other socket; if the author's own youth may be related to the youth of her characters, perhaps her work with the blind in Boston's Perkins Institute may be related to Claw's misfortune.

Parking Meters

(Continued from Page One) and traffic relating to such parking, on the streets and highways of said cities and towns. A provision of this law making parking meters legal for cities over 20,000 population only was repealed by the 1947 legislature. However, states Mr. Morgan, the remainder of the statute is in effect. Following the recent announcement that Waynesville would install 125 parking meters this summer it was talked over by several citizens who felt that the funds from the meters would be put to its best use by being allotted to a recreational program. It is understood that this policy will be recommended to the mayor and aldermen.
