NEW YORK—Marilyn Nash-like to tell how she not only got a leading role in the movies but also got a husband merely because she wanted to borrow a tennis court.

Miss Nash, a honey-faced blonde, is Charles Chaplin's leading woman in his new film "Monterieur Verdoux," and she is quietly resting in New York at the moment because she is, in her own words, "expecting."

"My film career started wholly unintentionally," she said. "I was a pre-medical student in the University of Arizona at Tucson and I had done some amateur acting in the student groups there."

"They always gave me minor roles because I was so tall, and later when I gave a reading for Mr. Chaplin I did the role of King Lear which I had played in school."

Miss Nash went to Hollywood on her vacation from college.

"My friend knew the Chaplins, so we went over there to borrow their tennis court one day," she said. "I met Mrs. Chaplin, Oona O'Neill, daughter of playwright Eugene O'Neill, and she suggested me for the role in 'Monterieur Verdoux.' That's when I read the part of King Lear for Mr. Chaplin."

"Mrs. Chaplin sent me to a dramatic teacher, Nina Mouse, who was a friend of Oona's mother. With her I studied voice and diction for two years before

HOLLYWOOD—A motion picture depicting the life of Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be given its American premiere at the Globe Theater in New York on September 1.

Floating Mines Appear Off Sweden Last Week

STOCKHOLM, Sweden—A new type of floating mine has appeared in the Baltic and is believed to be responsible for the loss of four Swedish fishing smacks so far. The new mines, chained together in dozens, must have been recently planted experimentally by some power having access to this inland sea, Swedish naval authorities believe. They recall last year's equally mysterious buzz-bombs over Sweden.

Swedish naval patrols have been unable to bring in a specimen of the mine, which explodes with a light thud resembling a rifle report. One mystery of the "oranges" is that as presently rigged they are too small to damage anything but mosquito craft.
