Opera

Theater in Oda, Ohio for two years. The romantic plot of "The Pirates" centers around Frederick, who when a young boy had been mistakenly apprenticed to a band of pirates, and his attempts to escape the band. Other than Ruth, who had joined the pirates as maid-of-all-work, he had seen but few women, and consented to take her as his wife, when Major-General Stanley and his beautiful wards happen upon the scene.

Leading roles in the light opera are sung by Frank Lowe of Davidson college, as the Major-General; Herman Lineberger of Salisbury, the Pirate Chief; Howard Jarratt of New York, as Frederick; Mary Helen Zum Brunnen of Salisbury and formerly with the San Francisco Opera company, as Ruth; Sylvia Rose of Charlotte, Dorothy Curry of Ft. Pierce, Frances Chesson of Elizabeth City, Eleanor Whiting of Hartsville, S. C., Mr. Danford, and Middy Raynal of Statesville.

Three choruses appear on the scene, of the Generals' wards, a chorus of pirate, and one of policemen.

Tickets for Monday evening's performance may be secured from music students at WTHS or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Theatre Troupe To Give 'Lombardi, Ltd.' Tonight

Starting tonight the "Theatre In The Sky" will present the Broadway comedy success "Lombardi, Ltd." with Dave Chamberlain, guest artist, playing the leading role of Tito Lombardi, originally played by screen star Leo Corriolo in the first New York production. The play will be repeated on Wednesday and Thursday and the curtain rises at 8:30 P. M.

Formerly on the professional stage Mr. Chamberlain is now business executive of a large Florida concern but keeps his hand in acting with the Tampa Little Theatre. He is one of the charter members of the group and has guided the policies until it has become one of the largest community theatres in the South. He has played the role of Lombardi more than forty times.

Appearing in the play with Mr. Chamberlain will be Ella Beth Hurst, Grace Shiner, Electra Ballou, Jean Argyle, Jean Ann Bradley, Bobbie Burnham, Faye Rollins, Polly Clark, Fredric Gadette, David Cromwell, Donald E. Vogt and George Kenyon.

An elaborate stage setting depicting the Lombardi Studio on Fifth Avenue has been designed by Elma Hene who also planned all of the special gowns to be worn through the play. The entire production is under the direction of Maurice Geoffrey, founder of the "Theatre In The Sky."

Trade School

One of the first jobs the school undertook was the construction of a scorekeeper and public address booth on the WTHS baseball field, shown in the accompanying picture. The Waynesville-Hazelwood Softball league wanted the building erected, but finances were not at a high enough ebb to pay a regular construction price for it. Mr. McClure offered to furnish workers free, and the veterans went into the job with enthusiasm. Now practically finished, the booth is as sturdy and well-built as if done by professionals, and at only a cost of materials used to the softball league.

In addition to this building, the veteran carpenters made tables for the lunchroom at the Bethel school, and recently have been working on the cannery and shop buildings at Crabtree. Thus the veteran training results in getting several useful items built for the public as well as training young people in a trade they may follow the remainder of their lives.

The courses are set up to be operating here at least two years. Only 20 veterans may enroll in each class. Since the courses here began, the maximum number joined and many more have applied for similar work.

Jack Messer, superintendent of schools, hopes to organize a course in electricity in September, although getting a capable instructor has thus far held back his plans for this. Plumbing is another field in which the school may branch later on.

During the winter months the emphasis will shift from practical work to construction theory; blueprint reading, sketching plans, study of materials and allied subjects.
