is now under way for the Senior Class play of the High School. They are now in "Ramshackle Inn," a farce in three acts by Watson, sometime within six weeks.

There will be a grand march consisting of just the St. John's students with their escorts. The Senior Class has invited other guests from outside St. John's School—and they too, are looking forward to the Prom.

An Easter breakfast party can be one of the nicest get-togethers of the year. Girls can show off their new bonnets and boys can sparkle in their new suits.

A group of not more than twelve at your brunch party should prove easy to handle if you don't try a too-elaborate menu.

Seat your guests at bridge tables. A chocolate bunny or bowl of colored eggs will make a pretty center piece for each table.

A good hurry-up menu of orange juice, hard-boiled eggs and hot biscuits or rolls and a beverage requires little fuss or bother and should please everybody.

Heat-and-serve, frozen or canned biscuits eliminate fussing with dough. They can be popped in the oven and baked in a jiffy and timed so they will be piping hot when you sit down. Frozen orange juice and colored eggs can be prepared the night before.

If you want to play a game, how about an Easter quiz? Here are some questions. Test yourself first. After all you should know the answers if you expect your guests to:

(A) How did the custom of wearing new clothes originate at Easter time? (B) Why is the rooster associated with Easter? (C) Why are flowers used around the cross at Easter time? (You can think up many more questions similar to these.)

Sometimes there are several answers that could be acceptable to a particular question. If your guest insists he is right in a certain instance, perhaps you can give him the benefit of the doubt.

Answers: (a) All nature blooms with new life at Easter time and in the 4th century Constantine, who loved display, found in Easter the excuse to dress up in richly made attire. "Gentlemen's Magazine" of 1783 (England) stated: "Every person must have some part of his dress new on Easter Day or he will have no good fortune that year."

(b) In ancient times the rooster's crowing symbolized reawakening.

(c) The flowers as a design were said to lighten the memory of the cross as an instrument of death.

When Easter time is around the corner, our girls turn to clothes. They are thinking about outfit they are going to wear to the case maybe, the ones they have.

TEEN TALK

We look around at our school-mates and most of them seem to have everything we lack. Fate might have saddled us with bow-legs or protruding teeth or acne or made us a just plain-skinny-Jane or a just-too-fat-Nancy. We never have any money in our jeans, never seem to have any dates, and our clothes look as if we'd purchased them at a rummage sale.

To make matters worse, thoughtless students tag us with nicknames in vulgar vernacular and such greetings as "Hi Skinny" or "Hi Fatty" just add to our miseries.

Are you going to take it sitting down or do you plan to do something about it? You can weather these thrusts while you go quietly along doing a repair job on yourself.

A skin doctor can prescribe for your acne. Sometimes all that is necessary to chase these blemishes is a new diet and a clean washcloth. When powdering your face, use clean cotton squares that can be thrown away after each powdering.

If your legs are a little bowed, wear skirts at a length that will best conceal that unwanted oval. Practice pressing your inner calf against a chair when you sit down. That way you might encourage flesh and muscle toward that inner leg that emphasizes the bowed look.

An orthodontist can start you on the road to straight teeth. Most dentists will give students a break in price, and if you start the job now, it will cost a lot less than if you let it go too long.

All you need is will power to lose weight. A good diet can help you gain.

who just couldn't understand life on the other side of the tracks. JoJo learns a lot from a church youth counselor and a boy who lives on the other side of the tracks who is trying to improve conditions there.

She learns that a whole community is responsible for every other part of its community, that bad conditions cannot be ignored, and that young people "across the tracks" can be just as nice as her own group when put to the test.

"Birthday Party" is another engaging film about Evelyn, who goes to school with Janie who is having a birthday party. Evelyn saves to buy a birthday present for Janie and prevails upon her mother to make a party dress—but she doesn't get an invitation to the party.

Evelyn's mother, visiting some neighbors, unaware that her daughter hasn't been invited, telephones Janie to see how Evelyn is enjoying the party. Janie awakes to the Golden Rule and learns what it means to be aware of the feelings of others.

In "A Job for Bob" a young man who desires to get married is turned down when he seeks work with an atomic laboratory—his big ambition. He tries job after job in hit and miss fashion, quits or is fired because he is angered and hurt. Unenthusiastically he takes a job in a tool factory and finally through a kindly employer begins to appreciate his work, and manages to figure out a method to improve the product manufactured by his company.

the-most-of-me program. Patience and perseverance will see you through your problems.

Don't cry in your soda pop at the jibes of your school mates. Life can be pleasant in spite of adversity. This doesn't mean that we're to act like delighted idiots and never do anything about our shortcomings or misfortunes. Make the most of body and brains and you will secure a more healthful attitude toward life.

Protestant churches are engaged in a joint effort to produce films for teen-agers. Three motion pictures made in cooperation with the International Council on Religious Education (which represents 40 denominations) by the Protestant Film Commission in Hollywood now are being shown in churches and Sunday schools. If these first few are any indication of movies to come, the movement should be a huge success.

DON'T RUSH THE SEASON . . . Spring clothes are pretty, but it's foolish to wear them when the thermometer says winter.

Small Charges Will Be Made In Certain Forests Areas

Small charges for public use of facilities at the North Mills River recreation area on the Pisgah Ranger District, the Carolina Hemlock recreation area on the Mt. Mitchell Ranger District, and at the Planners Beach recreation area on the Croatan National Forest will be made this season, Forest Supervisor Donald J. Morriss of the Pisgah-Croatan National Forest, announced today.

This decision marks a continuation of an experimental policy adopted last year and made effective in 1949 at four of the larger recreation areas in the Southern region. This year, the experiment is being broadened to include 17 such areas on Southern National Forests. No charges were made on the Pisgah-Croatan National Forest during 1949.

Charges will be nominal at the Pisgah-Croatan National Forest recreation areas, Supervisor Morriss said. Campers will pay 50 cents per day or $3.00 per week per week per camping unit for a car party of not more than six adults. Picnickers will pay 25 cents per picnic set, small shelter, or barbecue unit for a party of not more than six. No charge will be made for children of 12 or younger. A small flat fee will be charged for the big shelters and other large facilities used by groups of any size. Random length firewood will be furnished.

Supervisor Morriss pointed out that concessionaires will dispense refreshments and other services in addition to maintaining the area and collecting charges.

Leftover cooked veal may be mixed with diced cooked celery and a cream sauce. Season the cream sauce well and serve the veal over rice. Accompany with apple relish or pineapple chutney.
