His winning margin was fashioned by heavy favorable votes from both labor and industry

A star athlete during his university of Georgia student days, he was captain of the college track team, was a varsity halfback on the football team, and held down third base on the baseball team.

After getting his degree in civil engineering in 1910, Mr. Robeson started his professional career as a transitman for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. After that, he worked for mining firms, and played professional baseball before joining the shipbuilding firm in 1915-whose chief executive, incidentally, is Homer Ferguson, another Haywood County native.

From the company's civil engineering department, he worked his way through the jobs of; shipfitter, quarterman, employment manager, personnel superintendent, and personnel manager.

In 1934, he became vice-president and personnel manager. He and his wife, who was Miss Ruth Richards of Thomason, Ga., when they married in 1915, have three Haughters and a son. They're Mrs. J. W. Kirkpatrick of Altavista, Mrs. Robert Amsler of Wilmington, Del.; Edward J. Robeson, III, associated with an insecticide control business at 'Augusta, Ga; and Martha Robeson, who's a freshman at Newport News High

The impressive list of civic and church organizations of which he is an officer or a member reflects his varied interests.

Mr. Robeson is: Chairman of the board of stewards of Grace Methodist Church; Chairman of the board of managers of Riverside Hospital; member, Alpha Tau Omega frateroity; former director and vice-president of the Citizens Marine Jefferson Bank; member, Advisory Council of the Peninsula Industrial Committee, the Peninsula Association of Commerce; director, National Association of Manufacturers; Director, Southern YMCA Assembly at Blue Ridge, N. C.; director, Southern Industrial Relations Conference; and management representative of President Truman's Labor-Management Coun-

The number of cancer patients is increasing each year, and young people seem to be more susceptible to the disease than they were in the past.

"The cancer patient requires a great deal of nursing care." And that reflects the reason for the annual fund-raising campaigns to fight cancer.

Workers are currently trying to raise funds to meet Haywood County's $2,500 quota, Roughly half of this is being sought in the Waynesville area, where the Waynesville intendent of nurses at Haywood Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the campaign.

Marcus Ward, directing the local drive for the sponsoring Jay-Cees, cited official figures showing the seriousness of the situation in North Carolina,

One out of 11 deaths from all causes in this state is produced by cancer

During the last 10 years, 24,368 people died of this disease. The annual death rate jumped from a total 1,525 in 1930 to 2,092 in 1940. with this year's, as indicated previously, expected to be nearly 50 per cent greater.
