vard, Forest Hills, N. Y. This plan has been construction tested by Stackler & Frank, Long Island builders, who used the house shown here as a pilot model in building 44 "personalized" variations on plots of an acre and larger in the $25,000 class. Variations included a higher roof pitch with expansion attic and dormers, an outside door from the kitchen, two car garages, standard size windows in some bedrooms and other changes. The plan has an area of 1,684 square feet without garage, and the house is 58 feet wide and 44 feet, 10 inches deep.

Trail Of Million Dollar Fire In North Carolina

This scene of ruins marks the path of a million dollar fire through an industrial section of North Wilkesboro, The flames broke out in a lumber plant, one of the biggest in the state, and spread rapidly with high wind. Four million feet of lumber was destroyed, along with a lumber mill, an ice and fuel plant, a flour and feed mill and a trucking terminal. (AP Photo).

Pacific Coast Reviving Air Raid Patrols

HAMILTON FIELD, Cal. (UP)-Maj. Gen. Hugo P. Rush. commanding officer of the Western Air Defense Command, announced that the Pacific coast wartime air raid warning system is being reactivated.

The move was asked by the federal government "because of the ossibilities of conflict," he said. Rush added there was no need for public hysteria that the step was just a "good insurance policy."

During World War II volunteers manned observation posts and aircraft position plotting centers. Specific arrangements for recruiting the volunteer workers were not immediately announced, but it was estimated the set-up would require 30,000 workers in California, Oregon and Washington.

Hen Picks Car's Motor For Her Egg-Laying

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) - For three days W. H. Ellis had endured the burning smell coming from the hood of his automobile. He thought it was spilled oil.

Then Ellis lifted the hood to check. He found a white leghorn hen atop the motor and two white eggs on the manifold, one broken, from the front vestibule, another the other perfect.

Ellis described the hen as 'singed and pretty bedraggled." He calculated that he had driven May 27. about 90 miles with the hen under the hood.

STAMFORD Conn. (UP)-Tent caterpillars build their own highways, each taking its turn in laying down a roadway as fine as gossamer, a scientist reports.

A gray web or tent caterpillar nest in the crotch of a tree in spring contains as many as 300 little black wriggling worms, according to Dr. S. W. Bromley, entomologist of the Bartlett Tree Research Laboratories.

"When they become hungry," he said, "one will emerge and scoot out to the end of a limb, weaving have no windows. Interior rooms, a silken strand as it goes. The other worms will follow along this highway, Indian file,

"After feasting on tender new leaves, the caterpillars return to their web, backtracking along the silken highway."

gymnasium. But that was all right. He picked up his shattered glasses, shrugged and said, "Accidents will happen."

Lemkuhl and the Scouts retired to an ice rink at the end of the meeting for a fast game of tag. When he dodged to escape being "it," his skates went out from under and he landed on his chin.

His chin and one cheek were slashed to the bone, a few teeth were loosened and a wrist was sprained.

Irish Protest Invasion By British Film Trust

DUBLIN (UP)-Irish film Intersts are protesting the continuing this country by J. Arthur Rank's glant British film organization. They charge that the Irish branch of the Rank organization now constitutes an "undesirable monopoly" and have called on the government to safeguard national film interests.

The Irish subsidiary, launched some five years ago to ensue Irish showings of the products of Rank's British studies, now owns five of Dublin's first-run cingmas, leaving only two under high powership.

It also controls some 50 per cent of Dublin's second can said urban cineines, and the lan houses in Iteland's second third cities, Cork and Limerick. In all, only about 12 of the capital's 30-odd cinemas remain out-
