Hark to the story related here Of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bleer...

Spring weather on the way
Marvin planned a busy day
When bright car, he tho't he'd try
He didn't know the hose was dry.

Hanging screens was next in line
And Marvin was doing fine
Until he found a few torton
The screening very, very worn.

Next to do was paint the screen
Black or white or maybe green.
Mrs. M. did it alone
Before the Mr. could get home.

The paint, of course, was very fine—
Some of our famous Woolsey line.

So a trip to us, and all was nice;
He got the screening... at a very low price.

She look to cleaning rooms,
Using sweepers and the brooms.
Marvin thought her very neat
And she hollered, "Move your feet!"

"I'll paint the floor," old Marvin said,
But didn't think to use his head.
And tho' our paint does dry real fast
It's dumb to paint the corner last.

Hanging curtains wasn't fun
But Marvin got in on this one.
He should have had a ladder there,
If he goes down, down goes the pair!

We have fine paints of every hue
And brushes and things to paint with, too.

We have ladders, short and tall;
Buy one now and save a fall.

So, heed the story you've just read
And when, with cleaning you go ahead,
Get all you need, or as much as you care
From the friendly clerk at ---
