

Quarantine Clamped On Dogs In Beaverdam Area; 3 Animals Have Rabies

The detection of two cows and a dog, found to be suffering from rabies, has caused much anxiety among residents of the North Canton and Smathers Hill communities, near Canton, where the animals were known to have been and has called forth the cooperation of recently organized Haywood County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Health Department officials have placed a quarantine on all dogs in Beaverdam Township for two weeks. Dogs will not be permitted to run at large, but must be confined to the owner's premises.

A small 4-year-old child, whose name was not revealed by the local health office, was bitten by a stray dog, that was later found to be rabid, and is now taking a 14-day treatment from a local physician to prevent rabies.

Dogs or other animals known to have been exposed to rabies must be confined for two weeks from the time of the last known exposure. In this manner it is hoped to check the spread of rabies to other animals or persons in the township and county.

Weddings Still Stir Veteran Of 50,000 Of Them

NEW YORK (UP)—One marriage is par for most women. Mrs. Wilma Allen will chalk up her 50,000th this month.

Even with that record-shattering total, she still gets dewy-eyed as an 48-year-old when she hears the organ break into a wedding march.

"Even after 22 years of sweating out weddings," she says, "I still get a lump in my throat."

Mrs. Allen, a native of West Salem, Ill., is a bridal consultant for the Jay Thorpe store here.

She and a staff of seven supervise about 3,000 weddings annually. The shop outfits the whole wedding party, if the bride-to-be wants it that way. But it also provides free counseling on weddings right from the time the breathless young thing walks in looking for a dress until she trips down the aisle to say "I do."

Once the vows are said, Mrs. Allen is through. She has no plans for advising the lovers, although she gets plenty of requests along that line.

There was the time, during the war when a service man wrote pleading, "I heard about you from a buddy. Will you please do me a favor? Call my fiancée in Brooklyn—or at least she was my fiancée—and tell her how great you think marriage is. She's angry with me and I'm afraid some other guy will move in before I get home."

Wilma Allen has handled weddings for people of about every profession, religion, political leaning or social standing.

She has gowned brides who could afford a $30,000 outlay on a dress; brides who could pay only $25.

That $30,000 number was the most expensive Mrs. Allen ever had a hand in making. It was entirely of rose point lace and had a five-yard train.

Mrs. Allen won't say who wore it. The wedding consultant said pulling off either a big or small shindig is a cinch, if she just can keep Mama out of the picture.

She observed: "It's not only daughter's big day, but Mama's, too. And Mama manages to make the most of it. Of course, I understand how mothers feel. I'm one myself."

When Mrs. Allen speaks of seeing brides right to the church, she's not kidding. This devotion to duty is time-consuming and also produces its share of catastrophes, or near-catastrophes.

Police Call Halt
Flowers have been misplaced, maid-of-honor gowns lost, traffic laws violated.

Census Taker Collects Long-Overdue Debt

LOGAN, W. Va. (UP)—Amy Carper not only took the census of a Logan county family but collected $5 owed her 12 years by what once were her neighbors.

As she finished asking the usual questions and was ready to leave, the mother asked the census taker to wait until she handed her $5.

Mrs. Carper said: "Oh, I can't accept that. The government pays us."

The woman replied: "You don't remember me, do you? I used to live next to you 12 years ago at Ambar. I borrowed $5 to buy some milk and butter one day and forgot to pay you. Here's the $5."

Suing for Rent Costs Landlord $770

ST LOUIS (UP)—A real estate firm which sued a former tenant for $69 rent found itself the loser by more than $770.

The company sought two months' rent it claimed James Madigan owed.

The jury awarded the firm $15. However, Madigan filed a counter claim and the court awarded him $785.85. Madigan claimed (1) ceiling plaster fell ruining a dinner set and spoiling his supper (2) rain leaked through and damaged his furniture (3) the apartment was in such bad repair it was no longer habitable, and (4) the monthly rent was $4.50 above the legal ceiling.

by police. The first arrest was at 9:30 a.m. as she was en route to her third wedding. But the cop's heart softened when she explained her hurry and he provided a siren escort to the scene.

Her second encounter with the law didn't turn out so well. She was heading for wedding No. 8 when she was nabbed for speeding. A hard-hearted cop gave her a ticket.

Mrs. Allen says that even with all the practice she's had at weddings, she finds that when it comes right down to a marriage in her own family, the calm disappears.

"When my son Bob married," she confesses, "I forgot I was the bridegroom's mother and was supposed to walk down the aisle. Finally someone gave me a shove and I remembered this time I was in the wedding party, not running it."

Smart Girls Too Smart To Catch A Man

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Some of you smart women are just too smart to catch a man.

We have this from a smart woman who says she's decided men are smarter.

"I'm sick of the games women play and the childish traps they try to shove their men into," Mary Kay Dodson said. "Women think they can outwit men, but they can't. They fail because they always put them on the defensive. They don't treat them with any real intelligence."

Miss Dodson admits she used to try to play games with men but she's stopped. Now she uses her brains only to design costumes for other designing women in movies like Paramount's "Union Station."

"Most of us career women are arrogant little vixens," she confessed. "I pity the man who is unlucky enough to fall for one of us."

"The younger he gets a career girl, the better. If she's over 25 he'd better be patient and wait until her machine runs down a bit."

Too Dominating
"It takes a powerfully strong man to keep an ambitious career woman inside the bounds of sensible, compatible living. She usually wants to dominate her man completely when business is good. Then when business is bad she cries bitterly that he doesn't take care of her."

"No wonder men get sick of us," Women don't play their own games fairly, either, she added. They're too emotional. They try to play both sides. And when they can't, they pity themselves. That's what she says.

Miss Dodson learned her lesson with one husband, from whom she's divorced. Now she says she's down to reality.

"I'm not battling or competing against men any more," she proclaimed. "From now on I'm on their side."
