

Lazy-Susan Meals

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Use ready-to-eat foods that come in jars or cans or packages artfully if you want to save time and energy in getting summer meals and yet have good eating. Here are some suggestions:

Don't serve the entire meal out of jars and cans and packages if you can help it. Let a few of these foods help out and add something home-prepared.

Present your ready-to-eat food with a different touch. For instance ready-prepared Borscht (beet soup to you) can be chilled and poured out in a minute; but with it serve a lazy-susan or some other attractive platter of accompaniments—sliced cucumber (with the peel left on and scored before slicing thin), boiled new potatoes sprinkled with parsley, sliced and whole scallions, sliced hard-cooked eggs, and a bowl of sour cream.

Or instead of always serving the Borscht straight from the jar add two cups of tomato juice to it and a tablespoon of cooking sherry, then chill overnight to mingle flavors. Serve next day with a dollop of sour cream and a sprinkling of diced crisp cucumber on top.

Canned baked beans are a widely-used food that taste better when you've added a home touch. One man I know likes to season the molasses variety with Worcestershire sauce, curry powder, onion salt and then add diced fresh tomatoes as they heat. For a tasty baked bean casserole, empty canned Boston baked beans into individual casseroles, and add two tablespoons of molasses to each dish, stirring it in. String cubes of cooked ham or luncheon meat, tiny cooked onion rings (they come ready-prepared in jars), and small wedges of apple on skewers or steel knitting needles; heat in a moderate oven until the beans are bubbly and hot. Serve with a vegetable salad, milk, and muffins.

BEAN CASSEROLE . . . With a skewer of tasty morsels.

CHILLED SOUP . . . Try Borscht with sour cream.

HOW TO TELL WAR TIME

AP Newsfeatures

NEWS FROM TOKYO and the fighting fronts often brings confusion as to times and dates for the reader who is not accustomed to working with time zones. The chart, based on standard times, shows the difference in date produced by the international date-line in mid-Pacific and compares the times with U. S. times.

Hidden Wealth

News of important discoveries of rich copper-bearing ores in the Province of Ontario, Canada, began to be circulated in 1932. Little did those prospectors realize that those copper-bearing ores also contained huge quantities of nickel as well as platinum metals, gold, silver, selenium, tellurium and cobalt.

Cankerworms

Cankerworms, or inchworms as they are often called from their inching-along method of locomotion, are great defoliators of all deciduous trees. In many sections of the country they will be in outbreak form this year. In others they may be just reaching the peak of tapering off.

Helps Concentration

In a schoolroom, a too-intriguing color scheme will invite the attention to wander. To help focus attention, the wall against which the instructor usually stands may be painted in a warm, eye-drawing color, such as buff, and the other three walls in a cool, receding color with less visual interest.

LABOR DAY 1950 GREETINGS

As we observe this 1950 Labor Day, it is fitting that we make it a period of Thanksgiving for the many blessings that have been bestowed upon this community—we have been spared of floods, storms, crop failures, and serious disease epidemics. To live in such a splendid place affords us a lot of satisfaction, and enjoyment in going about our daily tasks. For this Labor Day, let's make it a day of Thanksgiving and rejoicing.

British Life Insurance

Record purchases of new life insurance in British companies last year brought ownership totals in those companies to a new high level at the start of this year. This was accomplished in spite of a decrease in the other major savings channels, national savings. The 40 life insurance purchases of 550,000,000 pounds were about 4 per cent over the record set in the previous year and double those of 10 years ago. Life insurance ownership had reached 5,350,000,000 pounds at the end of 1949, up 400,000,000 pounds in the year and 50 per cent over the ownership of ten years before.

The Gallatin Plan

In 1933 Albert Gallatin, secretary of the treasury, formulated a comprehensive plan in which he recommended the construction of a continuous turnpike to provide for travel from Massachusetts to North Carolina and another from Maine to Georgia which would unite the major seaports along the Atlantic coast. He also recommended roads across the Alleghenies between the Atlantic ocean and the great western rivers. The plan was never adopted because of sectional differences and on account of its alleged unconstitutionality.
