

YANKS CHECK CAMOUFLAGED CAVE

ONE OF A SERIES of vast underground caves in North Korea, large enough to hide an enemy regiment, gets a close inspection from Lt. H. Lanier, of Greensboro, N. C., and Warrant Officer Elmas Williams, of Alexandria, Va. Communist troops use the caves as hiding places and infiltrate U.N. lines under cover of darkness. (International Soundphoto)

Cheerful And Warm

Wool fleeces winter coat.

By VERA WINSTON

DEEP winter red wool fleeces is used for a good companion of a coat that aims to bring cheer and comfort to the chilly scene. The collar, which is hand stitched as are the cuffs, is made to frame the face or to be draped flat. The sleeves are crumpled with winged armholes. The hand-stitched detail continues all the way down the front. Along with the current penchant for surprise coat linings, this one is lined in navy taffeta.
