Free Methodist Church Here Was 'BUILT BY FAITH'

The "exercise of faith"—accompanied by plenty of hard work—has enabled a membership of 23 to build a $12,000 church and to establish a firm foundation for growth of the Free Methodist congregation in Waynesville.
Co-pastors Ruth Gruber and Charlotte Bishop came here a little over two years ago, after having built up churches in Andrews and in Murphy. The old American Legion building seemed the most suitable for temporary quarters, but it was in such poor repair that persuading its owner to let them have it was a job in itself. Painting and patching with their own hands resulted in a chapel for services and living quarters for the two women.
The next move was to the former Scott Reeves home on Boundary Street; then the culmination of their efforts—the present chapel at Assembly and Oak Streets. The building was started in October, and was ready for the first service on January 28 of this year.
The Reverend Paul Elder of Macon, Georgia, district superintendent, conducted the opening service, which was attended by 148 persons. The florists of the town donated flowers to decorate the chapel.
Again and again the note of faith sounds in everything that Pastor Gruber says. "We never asked people for money, nor put on a big campaign," she said, "and yet when we needed money for the lot—it came. Then when we were starting on the actual building, I tore open a letter from an old friend—and out dropped four $100 money orders!"
The church is built to take care of future needs. The auditorium seats 250 persons. There are six Sunday School rooms. The building is heated by gas.
The two pastors hope that their Board will let them remain in Waynesville another two years; then they'll be off to some other community to "minister to humanity in any way we can."

Glory and Service

Jesus, taking with Him Peter, James and John, went up into a high mountain, and there was transfigured, and Moses and Elias were with Him. A cloud shadowed them, from which a voice said, "This is My beloved Son: hear Him."

Suddenly the vision disappeared and the three disciples found themselves alone with the Master. As they walked down the mountainside, Jesus charged them that they tell no man what they had seen and heard until He was risen.

A multitude met them. A scribe came to Jesus and told Him of his son who was possessed of an evil spirit. Jesus expelled the spirit but the child lay as one dead; but Jesus lifted him up and he was well.

Finding the disciples arguing as to who of them would be greatest in His Kingdom, Jesus took a little child in His arms, telling them that he who would be first among them must be the servant of all. MEMORY VERSE—Mark 9:35
