Each successive church building represented a step forward in the number and activities of the congregation. The present building is about ten years old. The church also supplies a house for its pastor, the Rev. A. M. Wyatt.

All indications point to the spring planting season of 1951 as one of the most important eras in the history of the American farmer.

It is a time when farmers must be in step with the needs of the world — not too far ahead, not too far behind — but just right in step, in order to realize the greatest profits, and derive the greatest return on his investment of money and time.

This Bank has for many years kept an ear close to the pulse and heart of those things affecting our farmers. We welcome the opportunity to consult with you at any time.
