Motorists Should Check Driver's License Cards

Driver License Examiner R. V. Hooper of Waynesville, today reminded motorists who obtained renewal of their driver licenses in 1947 under the Re-issuance Program, to check their cards for the expiration date.

The expiration date, Examiner Hooper stated, will be found in the lower right hand corner of the motorists' present license cards. These motorists will be permitted to seek renewal 30 days prior to the expiration date, which falls on their birthdate. The majority will have surnames beginning with A or B, but a few will fall in other alphabetical groups.

Motorists who do not seek renewal in advance of the expiration date on their cards, will be required to take the complete test, Examiner Hooper pointed out.

A space will be provided on the new license cards for blood type, which will be placed on the cards upon presentation of evidence of blood type. Since inclusion of this information is a public service and voluntary on the part of applicants, failure to present the blood type will not be reason to deny issuance of licenses, said Examiner Hooper.

Persons whose last names begin with UVWXYZ must have their licenses renewed by June 30.

The daily schedule for Examiner Hooper will be as follows: Waynesville—Monday and Thurs-

New Handbook For Drivers Of State Are Out

RALEIGH—The Department of Motor Vehicles today is distributing the first shipment of its new "Driver's Handbook" to its 100 driver's license examiners throughout the State.

Designed as a textbook on safe driving, the handbook gives the beginning driver and the driver who is obtaining renewal of his license all the information necessary to enable him to pass the rules of the road and road signs phases of the driver's license examination.

The handbook, which is printed in three colors and black, will replace the "Driver Manual," when the present supply of that publication is exhausted.

One section of the handbook is devoted to highway safety, giving the driver the essential do's and don'ts of safe driving. In addition, the handbook gives information on applying for a driver's license, procedure in case of an accident, violations which bring revocation or suspension of licenses and required equipment on motor vehicles. Bicycle and pedestrian safety also are stressed.

The new publication is illustrated with diagrams of hazardous traffic situations and how to avoid them and shows all the road signs used in the State. The essential features of each drawing are printed in yellow. The cover is printed in two colors and carries a typical highway scene.

The Department has received 39,000 copies of the handbook to date. A total of 161,000 more are on order.

Atomic Age Peanuts

AP Newsfeatures

RALEIGH—One of the early Atomic Age achievements promises to be better peanuts.

More peanuts per acre, and possibly even something better in nut quality are objectives at North Carolina State College School of Agriculture. The experiments are in charge of Dr. Walton C. Gregory, associate professor of agronomy.

Thirty years ago the U.S. Department of Agriculture set out to discover how to cross-breed these plants to get new or better varieties. This scientific nut has not yet been cracked. The inherited characteristics of a peanut don't vary much, due to self-fertilization.

State College sent peanuts to Oak Ridge, Tenn., to be exposed to gamma rays of atomic origin. These radioactive rays caused a profusion of heredity changes, even in peanuts. This year the third generation from the Oak Ridge pappy peanuts is showing hundreds of changes, mostly useless. There are, for example, some the size of walnuts, and some heart-shaped. The Atomic Age stuff seems to be jarring the nuts' fixed habits.

But State College has added evidence that a solution may be nearer, in the form of the sixth generation of some improved nuts that were bred in the old-fashioned way, without benefit of radioactivity.
